

ARCHBOLD TELLS OF MONIES GIVEN BY STANDARD OIL

REPEATS TESTIMONY ALREADY HINTED AT IN THE ELECTION FUND PROBE IN WASHINGTON.

INTERESTS COMMITTEE

Showing is Not One of Encouragement for the Roosevelt Campaign As Regards Former Campaign.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 23.—John D. Archbold, pictured to the public as a political manager and directing genius of the Standard Oil company, today took the witness stand before the senate committee investigating the campaign funds to tell his version of the contributions to the campaign of 1904 now the subject of dispute between Senator Penrose and former President Theodore Roosevelt.

The states witness appeared in the hearing room half an hour before the appointed time and chatted with Senator Clapp and Senator Jones. Senator Penrose arrived ten minutes after Archbold. Messengers were hurried out to get Senators Oliver and Penrose, who are to sit as members of the committee.

Mr. Archbold told the senate committee investigating campaign funds that the "Standard Oil Company's" $125,000 contribution to the republican war chest of 1904 was made upon assurances from Cornelius N. Bliss that "the contribution was acceptable to Col. Roosevelt and that further contributions would be acceptable."

"I told Mr. Bliss I did not want to make the contribution unless it was to be gratefully received," he said. "Mr. Bliss told me Mr. Roosevelt's attitude toward business and said he believed Mr. Roosevelt would be a fair and conservative man when it came to the test."

Mr. Bliss urged that the policies of the republican party were the safest for business. We decided that our interests as a business organization lay on the republican side and we decided to make this contribution."

Mr. Archbold explained that $100,000 went to the republican national committee and that $25,000 was given to Senator Penrose for the republican state committee. The $25,000 given to Mr. Penrose, he said, "was a political contribution and not a payment for services in public or private life."

Later, when the late M. Bliss came and asked the Standard Oil Company for more money—about $105,000—Mr. Archbold said, the board of directors refused to contribute further. He quoted Mr. Bliss as saying, "I think you had better make this contribution. If you don't somebody else will."

Later Mr. Archbold said when the bureau of corporation began making adverse reports on the Standard Oil Company, Mr. Bliss admitted that the government attacks were unjust, but said he had no influence with President Roosevelt.

"President Roosevelt unfailingly approved these attacks," declared Mr. Archbold. "Without investigation of the slightest knowledge of the facts. These reports of Garfield and Smith were the work of the puppets who jumped when Roosevelt pulled the strings."

When the Standard Oil magnate was asked if he thought the company's refusal to contribute further was the cause of the "unjust" government attacks, he said, "I don't know."

When Mr. Archbold finished his testimony several members of the committee conferred over the advisability of inviting Col. Roosevelt to testify. Mr. Penrose wants the committee to subpoena the colonel.

Mr. Archbold's testimony, however, was regarded of such importance that it was determined to call Mr. Rockefeller if his health will permit and to recall George B. Coe, republican national chairman in 1904, who appeared before the committee in July 1911, and could not recall that any contributions from corporations were used in the Roosevelt campaign.

Mr. Coe's testimony also testified at that time that he had never heard of a contribution by Mr. Archbold or anyone "on his behalf."

When Mr. Archbold was excused it was announced that Senator Penrose would take the stand late today.

Senator Penrose was a witness before the Clapp committee this afternoon. He introduced into the record the statement regarding the $25,000 contributed to the Pennsylvania campaign fund of 1904 by John D. Archbold and the contribution of $100,000 to the national campaign fund, which he made Wednesday in the senate. He said he had practically nothing to add to that, but would answer any questions.

THOUSANDS PAID LAST TRIBUTES TO DEPARTED GENERAL

Great Salvation Army Leader's Body Lies In State Today and Is Viewed By Many Followers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Aug. 23.—The body of the late General William Booth lay in state today and the occasion produced a display of respect from all classes as has probably never been exceeded. All nations and all creeds were represented among the many thousands who paid their last tribute to the great evangelist. Even before dawn and despite a pelting cold rain, thousands were waiting in front of Congress Hall, Clapton, where the body had been taken from the late general's private residence. Before the general public was admitted, however, a large number of personal friends, public officials, and high officers of the Salvation Army came to pay their last respects.

ADJOURN TOMORROW, CONGRESS' SLOGAN

Leaders in House and Senate Hurry Business in Order to Close Session Saturday Afternoon.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 23.—"Adjournment of congress tomorrow afternoon," was the slogan today of the house leaders. Representatives Underwood and Fitzgerald calculated that all business could be finished to permit adjournment then.

President Taft signed the new legislative, executive, and judicial bill, twice vetoed because it carried amendments to abolish the commerce court and limit the tenure of office of civil service employees to seven years. Both these provisions had been eliminated and the commerce court was provided for until March 4, 1913.

President Taft has made plans today to leave Washington for Beverly within an hour after congress adjourns. He expects to stay at the summer capital most of the time until election. He will hear the returns probably in the White House and then that hopes to have a three weeks vacation at Hot Springs, Va.

MADISON WOMAN WAS SEVERELY BURNED

Madison, Aug. 23.—When Mrs. Marion Anderson, aged 63, came screaming down the stairs at her home this morning enveloped in a mass of flames she looked like a living torch. Her clothing was afire from her feet to her head. She was rushed into the yard and rugs were laid about her and the flames extinguished, but not before she was badly burned. Whether her burns are serious will depend on whether blood poisoning sets in.

INTERURBAN CARS CRASHED NEAR KENOSHA LAST NIGHT.

Racine, Aug. 23.—Shortly after 11 last night there was a bad head on collision between a north and south interurban car of the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light Company at the Lakeview siding about 2 miles north of Kenosha. Mistaken orders on the part of the crew is supposed to have been the cause of the accident. A panic resulted among the passengers and aside from a number sustaining cuts and bruises, injuries were trifling.

OUTDARED COMPANIONS BUT HAD HIS FOOT CRUSHED

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Aug. 23.—George Nordby and two companions sat on the Soo depot platform at Stanley, Wis., awaiting the approach of the midnight passenger train. They dared each other to sit there the longest with their feet on the rail. Nordby outlast his companions but miscalculated the distance in attempting to get away and had one foot crushed so badly that it had to be amputated.

ATTACK OF ALBANIANS WAS REPULSED BY THE TURKS.

Constantinople, Aug. 23.—30 Albanian insurgents were killed and 20 wounded and 6 Turkish soldiers died during a sharp attack yesterday on the Turkish rearm of Durazzo on the Adriatic coast. The Albanians who were of the Malissio tribe numbered 400 and were led by priests in a furious onslaught.

COMMON LAW WIFE WILL URGE CLAIM TO ESTATE.

Manitowoc, Wis., Aug. 23.—A sensation has been caused here by the filing in the Racine court of a claim made by Rose Hess, a Milwaukee woman, to share in the estate of the late Silas E. Giles as his wife under a marriage which the woman claimed was performed at Racine, Feb. 21, this year. The Hess woman it is said failed to establish proof of her marriage of which it is said there is no record at Racine, will enter claim as the common law wife, it is said. Giles was a former court reporter and is said to have left an estate worth $13,000 or more. The body was taken to New London yesterday. Giles formerly resided there.

Archeologists and Historians. Manitowoc, Wis., Aug. 23.—The annual field meeting of the Wisconsin Archeological Society was begun here today in conjunction with a meeting of the Manitowoc County Historical Society. The day was spent in visits to places of interest in this vicinity. Tomorrow the members will go to Two Rivers to inspect the Henry P. Hamilton collection of Indian relics, said to be the finest private collection of its kind in the Northwest.

STATE DEPARTMENT URGES HASTE WITH BOAT EQUIPMENTS

Situation in Nicaragua Becomes More Acute Each Hour And Sailors Are Hastening to Scene.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 23.—The state department is urging the navy to take every possible step to get the transport Prairie started as soon as possible for Colon.

The navy is doing its best, but the marines the ship is to carry for service in Nicaragua cannot be concentrated before tomorrow. Dispatches to the state department are from 24 to 48 hours late in transmission.

Each seems to indicate more aggravated conditions. Quicker transmission of official cablegrams probably will follow the arrival of the submarine Denver at Corinto. The vessel is due there tomorrow or Sunday.

She will land about 100 blue jackets and steam to San Juan del Sur where the cable station is located. Then the navy will be in direct radio communication with the Annapolis and the Justin at Corinto.

State department officials are hoping the dissection in the rebel quarters over the provisional presidency will keep up until the arrival of the American reinforcements.

Where there is trouble among the rebel leaders, it is argued, which possibly might result in each dividing and the taking of his own followers, there is little to fear from combined attacks.

The big armored cruiser Maryland speeding for Panama has been ordered to put in at Corinto and land 340 blue jackets and her full detachment of 60 marines.

After this the vessel will steam immediately for Panama to take on marines which leave Philadelphia tomorrow on the transport Prairie. The Maryland will arrive at Corinto probably next Wednesday.

EXPECTS CONFESSION FROM MAN HIGHER UP

District Attorney Whitman Known to Have Important Evidence From Certain Police Inspector.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Aug. 23.—The blackmail phase of the Rosenthal murder case is now being probed by District Attorney Whitman, who has let it be known that he has obtained evidence implicating one police inspector and one civilian in grafting. While District Attorney Whitman will not comment himself, it is known that he expects an offer of complete confession from a man high up in police circles, whose story will lay bare the graft system and whose narratives will involve many others who have profited by the blackmail and gambling houses and disorderly houses.

Charles C. Steinert and James C. White, the policemen who were indicted by the grand jury in connection with the arrest of "Jack" Selig, were arraigned before Judge Mulqueen today. They pleaded not guilty to the indictment charging perjury and were held in $10,000 bail.

Louis Romaine, alias "Lefty Louis" has been located in the suburbs of a southwestern city near the Rocky Mountains and two detectives of the district attorney's staff have been sent to arrest the much wanted gunman in the Rosenthal case. The authorities did not mention the name of the place.

CHICAGO STRIKE IS NOW BEING SETTLED

Arrangements Appear to Be Satisfactory To Both Sides of The Dispute Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Aug. 23.—With working conditions satisfactorily settled, union leaders and officials of the street car companies prepared for a debate of the question of the wages at another conference with Mayor Harrison tomorrow. Concessions made by representatives of the street car men and traction officials cleared away all the wage difficulty. It is expected the draft of the wage agreement will insure peace.

New York, Aug. 23.—All grades of refined sugar were advanced 10 cents a hundred pounds today.

DARING MAIL TRAIN ROBBER NEAR DEATH RESISTING CAPTURE

Unidentified Man Who Robbed Union Pacific Registered Mail Wounded By His Own Revolver.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 23.—The daring robber who was shot and seriously wounded by his own revolver while resisting capture after he had robbed the mail car on the Union Pacific train No. 101 which left Kansas City for Denver at 10:30 o'clock last night, was still alive in a hospital here this morning, but police had not yet learned his identity.

The train known as the Denver express, a long train carrying heavy mail, was just leaving Kansas City, when an active man, slender and about 40 years of age ran across the depot platform and leaped into the mail car through the open door. J. D. Withers, the clerk in charge of the car turned and faced the man who leveled a revolver at him. Withers was commanded to bind and gag his five associates and not to raise a hand if he dared for his life. Withers obeyed the command and bound and gagged all the fellow workmen, E. J. Smalley, Joseph Gaines, C. H. Stewart, F. E. Oldham, and Robert Hartwell.

The robber then went through all the registered pouches stuffing the richest packages into his pockets. After securing the loot he commanded Withers to untie his comrades being careful to keep the clerks covered with his revolver.

At Bonner Springs where the train made a brief stop the robber commanded the men to work the mail so as not to attract attention of persons at the station. When Lawrence was reached the robber dropped quickly from the car and ran toward the rear of the train. Withers quickly gave the alarm to the train crew.

A negro porter said he saw a man with bulging pockets enter a sleeping car. Conductor M. E. Smith hastily summoned two Lawrence policemen and all three followed him into the car. The robber had hid himself in an upper berth. Smith boldly pulled the curtain aside and made a grab for him. The robber raised his revolver and pulled the trigger just as Smith caught his hand and turned it back. The bullet entered the man's chest close to the heart.

In another minute the conductor and two policemen had dragged him into the aisle and pinioned his arms. The robber weak from loss of blood made no resistance.

A physician on the train gave him temporary treatment and proceeded to Topeka. There the robber unable to talk was placed in a hospital.

The only clue to the man's identity was a letter in his pocket which was addressed to Mrs. W. L. Losberry, Medford, Ore., R. F. D. No. 2.

A DANGEROUS CURE FOR MARTIAL ILLS

Two Oklahoma Women Lodged in Jail for Attempting Murder to Solve Family Troubles.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

McAlester, Okla., Aug. 23.—Two women accused of having resorted to the use of the pistol for the cure of marital ills are in adjoining cells in the McAlester jail today. One of the prisoners, Mrs. Al. Turley, is charged with having shot Mrs. Lena Shoemaker of Crowder. Mrs. Shoemaker is dying. The shooting followed Mrs. Turley's declaration that her husband was too attentive to Mrs. Shoemaker. The other prisoner is Mrs. Samuel Buck. She is accused of having murdered her former husband at Bowen. When Buck called at the residence of his divorced wife she shot him. She claimed that she feared he would do harm to their child.

PLAN TO ORGANIZE CAMPAIGN ON VICE

World Purity Federation Will Seek Suppression of White Slave and Public Vice.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 23.—Announcement is made today by B. S. Steadwell, president of the World's Purity Federation that the federation will begin an immediate campaign in an effort to suppress vice by a properly organized and thoroughly equipped department in each state of the union and in each province of Canada for the suppression of public vice. It is contended that such departments are integral parts of the state government and will be able in connection with the federal government to completely suppress white slave traffic and to wipe out the public dive.

"The World Purity Federation is the oldest and most widely known organization that is engaged in the fight against white slave traffic and the public dive and has always stood for rational and sane methods in its work," said Mr. Steadwell. "If public vice is ever suppressed, and the young people are protected from its ravages, it must come from our government and cannot be brought about by any reformers who are seeking personal careers or are actuated by other selfish motives."

MONTANA BANKERS IN SESSION.

Kalispell, Mont., Aug. 23.—Several hundred bankers and financiers members of the Montana State Bankers' Association, responded to the call here this morning at the opening of the ninth annual convention of the association. The principal feature of the initial session was the annual address of the president, A. L. Smith of Helena. The convention will conclude its business tomorrow.

LA FOLLETTE LAUDS ATTITUDE OF TAFT ON CIVIL SERVICE

Wisconsin Senator Defends Ground Taken by President and Again Directs Scathing Editorial At Roosevelt.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Aug. 23.—Senator La Follette has a good word for President Taft today. In his weekly magazine of today the senator commends the president's defense of the civil service. He says:

"The proposition to limit the tenure of office of government clerks to seven years cannot be defended on any basis and was a very reasonable ground for the president's veto of the legislative appropriation bill."

The editorial, a column long, is entitled "Taft Protects the Civil Service," and concludes as follows:

"The government clerk is poorly paid. There has been no increase of salary proportionate to the growing cost of living. Many of the office buildings are old and overcrowded and their sanitary condition is a subject of reproach and investigation. It becomes congressmen whose salaries have been raised, whose modern office buildings have been equipped without stint, to pass a law which will subject government clerks to the useless harassment of a limited tenure of office."

Roosevelt's Expenses. Senator La Follette thinks it would have been better, he says in his magazine today, had Col. Roosevelt labelled his convention speech a "confession of facts" rather than one of "faith." He makes this the text for another editorial for publicity of the colonel's campaign expenditures. Referring to Roosevelt's campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, the editorial says:

"The public knows that he spent an enormous amount of money in that campaign. In some states, as in Ohio for example, it has been conservatively estimated that not less than $300,000 was expended to secure delegates for him. Go where you would throughout the country in that campaign, it was common talk that 'there was all kinds of Roosevelt money everywhere.'"

"It is generally believed that this money was, in large part, the unlawful spoils of the trusts which thrived by special favor, at the expense of the people, under the Roosevelt administration. Campaign contributions of such magnitude should be made by those who have big interests to serve. They are 'practical' business men and expect big favors in return."

Refuses Publicity. "When the presence of money in the Roosevelt campaign for the Republican nomination became so glaringly conspicuous, there was a very general impression that, to quote the words of his recent convention speech, 'there should be publicity of campaign contributions during the campaign.'"

He was accordingly invited to make such a statement. He did not respond to that invitation. Interest in the matter has in no degree abated. Indeed, it has steadily grown until there is a wide public demand that he should tell the people all about it. "Until he makes a clean breast of the financing of his last campaign, his Chicago declaration for 'publicity of contributions,' in this campaign, is an insult to public intelligence."

Senator La Follette is severe in condemnation of President Taft's veto of the wool bill. When congress attempts to reduce duties, he declares, "this needy created tariff board seems to be a convenience for stopping revision downward."

SOME ALDERMEN MAY WAIVE EXAMINATION

Detroit Officials Expected to Ask for Immediate Trial of Charge of Accepting Bribes.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 23.—Whether or not a number of Detroit aldermen charged with having accepted bribes or announcing their willingness to accept bribes will waive preliminary examination and be bound over for trial may be decided late today when it was expected that the preliminary hearing of Alderman Louis Brozo of the 13th ward will be completed. Brozo's hearing began this afternoon.

HOLD GRAND GARDEN FETE TO RAISE TITANIC FUNDS.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond Hosts to Many Notables at Their Summer Home.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 23.—The President and Mrs. Taft, residing for the summer at Beverly, the many foreign diplomats who have their summer homes at Magnolia and Manchester-by-the-Sea, and a long list of notables included among the North Shore summer colonists, all journeyed this afternoon to Gloucester in acceptance of invitations to be guests at the grand garden fete at "Lookout Hill," the magnificent summer estate of Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond. The party, for which preparations on the most elaborate scale have been making for weeks past, is for the purpose of raising funds to aid the project for the erection of a memorial in Washington to the memory of the men who went down in the Titanic.

Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 23.—The annual Winona Bible conference, one of the most notable assemblies of its kind in the country, opened today and will continue until September 1st.

Prominent among the scheduled speakers this year are Prof. W. P. Patterson of the University of Edinburgh, Bishop Edwin H. Hughes of the Methodist Episcopal church, William J. Bryan of Nebraska, Charles M. Sheldon, the preacher and author, and Rev. Mark A. Matthews of Seattle, moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly.

VERMONT TOWN 150 YEARS OLD.

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 23.—The town of Montpelier donned gala attire today in celebration of the 150th anniversary of its settlement. Many visitors joined with the citizens in the celebration. Ellsworth Lawrence, of Malone, N. Y., a descendant of one of the first settlers of Montpelier, delivered the anniversary address. In addition to the literary and historical exercises, the day's program comprised a parade, band concerts and numerous other features of entertainment.

VETERINARIANS TO MEET.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 23.—The annual convention of the American Veterinary Medical Association, which is to be held in this city this coming week, is expected to attract about 2,000 members from all sections of the United States and Canada. Among those who will take part in the convention program are Dr. W. K. Kilgus, of Noblesville, Ind., who will have charge of the surgical clinics; Dr. D. Gill of New York, who will have charge of the medicinal clinics, and Dr. D. E. Salmon, who was the first veterinary to become a member of the United States bureau of animal industry.

TRADE EXHIBITION IN NEW YORK.

New York, Aug. 23.—The largest trade exhibition ever held in New York opened in the Grand Central Palace today and will continue until the end of the month. The exhibition has been arranged for the exclusive benefit of the army of fall buyers who are now in the metropolis from all parts of the United States and Canada. The exhibitors include leading manufacturers in all branches of the house furnishing crockery, glass and allied trades.

LARGE ENROLLMENT AT NORMAL SCHOOLS

Recent Revision of Courses Has Resulted Favorably For Eight State Institutions.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Aug. 23.—The eight state normal schools will open Sept. 2. The introduction of a two years' course equivalent to two years at the state university, which was adopted two years ago, has had the effect, it is believed, of increasing the enrollment the past year, and for the same reason a decided gain in number of students is looked for this fall.

The university courses available at the normals are: Two years in letters and science, two years in the commerce course, two years in preparation for law or journalism, and sixty-four credits in the college of agriculture. The first year of the engineering course also is offered. It is claimed for the college course in the normals that it enables many students to live at or near home during half their college or university course, and that it allows more direct supervision over their lives. The expense of travel and the cost of living while at college will be lowered, it is contended.

Catalogues advertising the college course have been sent to all high school graduates of 1912 and to all schools, and the state normal schools will thus receive more advertising than had ever before been given them. Bulletins advertising the work in industrial education at the Oshkosh school, for which $80,000 have been devoted for a building, have been sent out, and the board is issuing a special bulletin on the domestic science work, which will be expended at the Stevens point school. A school of agriculture—a new department—has been established at the River Falls school and will be opened next month. In Milwaukee the school of arts will be moved early this fall from Mason street to the normal school building.

The new president of the Whitewater normal, Prof. A. F. Yoder of New York, has been at Whitewater for some time. It is doubtful whether a successor to president Charles McHenry at the Milwaukee normal will be chosen this fall. The executive committee of the board is conducting negotiations for a new head.

About Some Feature Films

WE WERE COMPARING vaudeville in general with feature films in general, and showed you why we are going to try the films exclusively for a few weeks. Now call to mind some vaudeville acts you have seen here, and ask yourself whether such are preferable to the following films extraordinary—

"The Life of Buffalo Bill," a Western biographical subject to be shown Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 30 to Sept. 1. In this, Col. Cody himself, supported by an enormous and able cast, re-enacts the most thrilling scenes of the great scout's adventuresome life. In 3 reels, "Fra Diavolo," a 3-reel Solax production of the great opera. We bring you this opera, which very few have the privilege of seeing, beautifully staged and acted in pictures—Sept. 2, 3 and 4.

Next is the Thanhouser "Lucile," after the poem by Owen Meredith. If you saw "Jess," or even "The Cry of the Children," by this company, you would not miss this at double or triple the admission price.—Sept. 6, 7 and 8. Gordon Trent says, in the N. Y. Morning Telegraph: "Lucile" is a wonder.

"A Victim of the Mommies" follows "Lucile," and you can compare the work of the greatest company in Northern Europe with Thanhouser's, as this is a "Great Northern." This is a sensational drama beautifully staged, acted and photographed, that holds its spectators with breathless interest.

A Russian story, "The Glass Coffin," by the same company, follows on Sept. 13, 14 and 15. This is a weird drama now being shown day after day to packed houses in Milwaukee.

We will give you the greatest films produced in the whole world, and our record of attendance will show us whether you prefer them to vaudeville.

EUGENE WALL WAS ARRAIGNED TODAY

Charged With Offering Resistance To Officer Sam Brown in Discharge of His Duty.

As an outcome of the arrest of Hugh Waggoner on Wednesday evening, in which officers Sam Brown and Jim Dorn experienced so much difficulty in taking their prisoner to the police station, Eugene Wall was arrested and was arraigned in municipal court this morning charged with offering resistance to an officer in the discharge of his duty, the officer named in the complaint being Officer Sam Brown. It is alleged that Mr. Wall took the officer by the arm in an attempt to aid Waggoner to escape. Mr. Wall claims that he was endeavoring to aid the officer. His examination was set for tomorrow morning at ten o'clock and bail bonds were fixed at $300 which were secured.

CAR WAS BROKEN INTO AT THE NORTHWESTERN YARDS.

Box Containing Drug Supplies Taken From Car Recovered From Hiding Place in Weeds.

Car thieves broke into a freight car standing in the Northwestern yards near the freight depot last night and took from it a box containing drug supplies, valued at one hundred dollars, which were consigned to W. W. Wells of Sycamore, Ill. A woman and two men were seen near the freight depot last evening by one of the night men employed in the yards, the woman holding a large box which she was trying to open. The railroad men immediately became suspicious of their actions and telephoned to the police, but when the officers arrived a short time later, the trio and the box were gone. Agent Alva Hammer called on the station this morning and Chief of Police Appleby and Officer Jim Dorn went to the depot. The night man who had seen the three, showed where they had been standing, and from marks on the ground, it could be seen where the box had been dragged. The box which was about three feet long and a foot and a half square was found in some weeds, with an old dirty rag thrown over it.

OBITUARY.

John Golden.

The remains of the late John Golden were tenderly laid to rest in Mt. Olivet cemetery Wednesday. Funeral services for the deceased were held at 10 o'clock at St. Patrick's church, Rev. Fr. Mahoney celebrated high mass and preached a glowing tribute to the memory of the deceased.

John Golden was born July 18, 1841 in Ulster, New York. For the past two years he had been ill, but had been a patient sufferer through all his sickness. He was a man loved and esteemed by all who knew him. Surviving him are a wife, one daughter, Nellie and one sister Mrs. Nora O'Tool, Sisson, Cal.

Those who attended the funeral from out of town were: Miss Rose Walsh, John Walsh and T. G. Walsh, Richard Center, Mr. and Mrs. William Ennis and John Snyder of Oconomowoc, Wis.; Miss Anna Golden, James Golden, John Mills and Tom Cummings of Whitewater; Mrs. Nora O'Tool of Sisson, Cal.; Mrs. Black, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Doran, Henry Bonor, Chicago; Mrs. Daniel Bonor, Woodstock, Ill.

The pallbearers were Alex and John Busfield, John G. Timmons, Ernest Vobian, Emmett Zeman and M. Cardain.

Olaf Larson.

Funeral services for Olaf Larson were conducted at half past two o'clock this afternoon from the late home in the Park farm on Magnolia avenue. The Rev. T. D. Williams officiated at the services at the home and services were conducted in Oak Hill chapel and at the grave by the Old Fellows. Members of Janesville Lodge No. 90 I. O. O. F. attended the services in a body, and the song service was rendered by E. E. Sadler, Lynn Whaley, Clarence Phillips and W. E. Olin, members of the lodge. The floral tokens of love and esteem were many and very beautiful. Interment was made in Oak Hill cemetery. The pallbearers: Charles Sykes, W. B. Davis, Bernard Puhall, A. M. Church, William G. Smith and Harry Daly.

Returns From Outing: The Rev. Henry Willmann, Rector of Trinity church, has returned from a ten day fishing trip in the northern part of the state, near Star Lake. He enjoyed trout, bass, and muskellonge fishing and met with good success. Saturday being St. Bartholomew's day there will be a celebration of the holy communion at 7:30 a. m.

HARLEM PARK AMUSEMENTS FULL OF INTEREST TO ALL

Harlem Park At Rockford Is Becoming One Of The Amusement Centers For This Part Of The Country.

Saturday, August, 24th, is to be Children's Souvenir and Field Day. No entrance fee will be charged for any of the contests and handsome prizes will be given to the winners. This should bring out a large crowd of children together with their parents. There will be a special afternoon performance by the acrobats together with moving picture show.

Sunday August 25th will be the last day of the Japanese week and there will be a band concert in the evening.

August 25th to September 1st Little Elsie, the Diving Diana, will be the big added free feature. She makes a dive from a 48 foot ladder into a tank of water 5 feet deep. She will also give swimming exhibitions on Tuesday, the 27, during the Traction Family Picnic, and on Sunday September 1st. She will give two high dives daily, at 4:00 and 9:30 p. m.

The free added attraction for September 1st to September 8th will be the Real Quartet. This is the colored quartet which made such a big concert hit at the park last season, not only by reason of the harmony produced, but by the novelty of their act.

AUTOISTS TOURING COUNTRY IN CITY

A. N. And E. D. Mead of Greenwich, Conn., Returning From Transcontinental Tour, Passed Through Today.

A. N. and E. D. Mead of Greenwich, Conn., automobile tourists returning from a transcontinental touring in their four-cylinder Roadster, with their pets, Topsy, the four-months old bear cub, and Bob, a bull terrier, passed through this city this afternoon on their way to Chicago, where they expect to spend the night. The two men arrived in the city shortly after one o'clock, and after stopping to secure dinner and purchase gasoline for their machine, they continued on their journey.

The tourists left Greenwich on May 4 and took the lower route into Los Angeles, Cal., passing through Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Arizona and Nevada on their way to California. From Los Angeles they toured up the Pacific Coast to Seattle and then came across the country, through Washington, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, and Minnesota into Wisconsin. They spent last night at Reedsburg, and left there this morning, making 200 miles up to the time they reached this city today. They expect to reach home some time next week. While in Montana, they secured the black bear cub, which rides in state on a crate just over the trunk on the rear of the car. An admiring crowd was gathered around the car and little Miss Bruin during the time the tourists stopped here.

The two men carry with them full camping equipment, including tent and cooking supplies, together with two extra tires and a shovel for emergency uses. They have crossed nearly all of the mountain ranges in the United States and have viewed some of the most beautiful scenery the country affords. In North Dakota they were hampered with rains, which turned the soil of that country into a sticky gumbo, retarding their progress. Their worst experience was in attempting to ford the Powder river in Montana. An entire day, from nine o'clock in the morning to ten o'clock at night was spent trying to get out of the quick sand, and were forced to walk twelve miles to secure a four horse team to pull the car out. The car was covered with pencil marks where people in different towns where they have stopped have written their names.

JURY FINDS MRS. BERNSTEIN INNOCENT

Mrs. Florence Bernstein.

Having been acquitted by the jury which sat in her case, Mrs. Florence Bernstein, the Chicago woman accused of having murdered her husband on May 4 last, has gone to the home of relatives. The prosecution charged that she murdered her husband while he was asleep, but Mrs. Bernstein succeeded in making the jury believe that the murder was committed in self defense.

Looking Ahead.

LOCAL CREWS IN TRAIN COLLISION AT ROCKTON.

Local Railroad Men Working on the Trains Which Collided in Rockton Yesterday Morning.

Traffic on the St. Paul railroad at Rockton, Ill., was tied up nearly all day yesterday, because of a head-on collision of two freight trains, No. 166 southbound, and No. 173 northbound, which occurred about half past seven o'clock when one of the trains was doing some switching in the Rockton yards. Failure of the airbrakes on one of the trains is said to have caused the accident, but the engine crews escaped without injury, jumping when the locomotives came together. The engines were damaged and a stock car was smashed. A wrecking outfit was sent out and spent most of the day in picking up the wreckage. Two crews from this city were working on the train. Conductor Gregory and Engineer Bush were in charge of train No. 173 and Conductor O'Brien and Engineer Clark of 166.

You don't have to bake it, you don't have to fry it,
You don't have to wash it, or peel it or dry it,
You don't have to set it to rise over night,
You don't have to worry for fear it's not right,
It's ready for you when you're ready to eat it.
What is it? Why, "Toasties" Can anything beat it?

TRAINING SCHOOL WILL OPEN MONDAY

Increased Attendance Over Last Year Is Predicted For County Institution.

The second year's work of the Rock county teachers' training school will begin next Monday, Aug. 26, with an attendance considerably larger than last year according to present enrollment. The upper class composed of the first year students last year will have an increased membership as a number of high school graduates have announced their intentions of entering. For the present the work will be in charge of Prof. Lowth and Miss Jacobson. The latter will take charge of the music work which under the direction of Mrs. Georgia Hyde was started last year. Prof. Lowth is expected to return this evening from Battle Creek, Mich., where Mrs. Lowth has been undergoing treatments in a sanitarium, and will take charge of the work attending the opening of the school year.

Old Father Time with his scythe has no terrors for Ed. Geers, the famous old jockey. "Pop" at the age of seventy-five is tougher than a nut, and still has to be reckoned as one of the great drivers of the world. Geers, who is still winning races on the Grand Circuit, has been the maker of more trotting and pacing champions than any other man living. He has figured in the big races for the last 45 years, and his prowess is as great today as ever.

"Distance swimming is neglected at our universities, where it should be encouraged in every possible way," recently declared Frank Sullivan, coach of swimmers at Princeton. "The furlong race is the longest of the list, and the result is that most of the coaches aim only at developing good sprinters and let the hundred yards go in and do their best at 220 yards, usually without any special preparation. This is poor policy, for the country is deplorably weak in distance swimmers, as we found to our sorrow in the 400 and 1,500 meter events at Stockholm, and since it is from the schools and colleges that must come the champions of the future the association authorities should deem it their duty to turn out the necessary material."

Our British cousins will make a strong bid for the international trophy for motor boats this year. This series of races will be the only international event at New York this season and great preparations are being made on both sides of the Atlantic. The races are set for August 26, 27, 28. Lord Charles Beresford, who is commodore of the Royal Motor Yacht club, is much interested in the outcome of the races, and declares the triple defeat the British have suffered has not dampened their enthusiasm.

READY FOR RECEPTION TO OLYMPIC ATHLETES.

New York City is Agog Over Great Demonstration Which Will be Given Heroes Tomorrow.

[Special to the Gazette.]
New York, Aug. 23.—All of New York, or at least all of the large proportion of its inhabitants who take interest in sport and athletics, is agog in anticipation of the great demonstration to be given here tomorrow in honor of the American athletes who carried the Stars and Stripes to victory in the recent Olympic games at Stockholm. The final arrangements which were completed today indicate that the demonstration will be one of the most notable affairs of the kind ever witnessed in Gotham. It is being planned by the city down to the smallest detail in the public schools, appears interested in the celebration. Broadway, from Forty-second street to the City Hall, is being handsomely decorated with flags and bunting for the parade which will be the leading feature of the demonstration of welcome.

caught the rowing fever and are working hard to have the sport revived at the Providence institution. A similar attempt was made last year, but without success. The principal difficulties seem to be financial ones.

The British are already working overtime figuring ways and means of winning the next Olympic contest, at Berlin in 1916. They have approached Ernie Hjertberg, trainer of the Swedish athletes for this year's Olympic, with a proposition to train the English athletes for the German meet.

If New York and Boston take part in the world's series this fall, they will leave the east on October 25 for a trip that will take them half way around the world. The trip will cover leading cities in the United States, the rival teams playing in Los Angeles and San Francisco before sailing for Honolulu. After several games there, the players will go to Japan, where they will play some more. Then they will visit in turn Hong Kong, Manila and the larger cities of Australia. Then Panama and South America will be toured, the teams returning to New York on Feb. 1.

There are five standard events on the Olympic games program in which America has never been defeated. They are the 110-meter hurdles, the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the shot put and the hammer throw. In four other events the United States athletes have sustained only one defeat, and this includes the 400-meter race, the running high jump, the standing broad jump and the pole vault. The hop-step-and-jump and the javelin throw are two events in which Americans have never started.

ECHO FROM RECENT REVIVAL OF RACING ON THE LOCAL TRACK

W. J. Markay of the Horse Review Writes of Last Week's Events in Interesting Manner.

Local enthusiasts in the harness game will be interested in the following resume of the revival of harness racing in Janesville as viewed by Markay (W. J. Markay) in the present issue of the Horse Review. Mr. Markay visited Janesville during the meet and aside from the following article, has a full page devoted to the races themselves. He says:

"Revival" meetings are very much the vogue in this season 1912. I do not refer to such as Billy Sunday holds, but to those cities wherein harness racing, once popular, had apparently died out, only to become rejuvenated and revived. We had a revival at Lansing, Mich., and week before last another at Pittsburgh. It was my pleasure to be among those present when Lansing and Pittsburgh were being christened, and last week I was in attendance at another "come back" meeting, that given at Janesville, Wis. Harness racing had been a dead issue at Janesville since 1896, and, to all appearances, was a mummified corpse, but a few hustling enthusiasts, headed by Secretary-Manager C. S. Putnam, injected new life into the supposedly dead. Janesville, as the religious workers would say, "held a rousing meeting and the greater part of the citizens confessed their faith and became converted." In the old days Janesville was an important racing and breeding center, but for some reason or another the meetings there ceased to pay and were abandoned in 1896. The story that Mr. Putnam could tell of how he brought about new interest would be an interesting one, but I can give the version in a few words. Mr. Putnam had faith in his town and in his people, and believed that they would patronize harness racing if given a chance under the right auspices. To make a long story short, the old track was fixed up, a new half-mile track and new barn constructed, and a meeting given which was largely attended and which resulted in big crowds and resulted in splendid racing. The people of Janesville greeted the revival enthusiastically, and there is not a shadow of doubt as to the future of racing in the Wisconsin city.

During the three days I spent at Janesville, I was introduced to secretaries and fair managers from all parts of Wisconsin, and a finer lot of men I have never been my pleasure to meet. They are hustling for their various meetings, and if any enters away from them it was not observable. Each felt there is a scarcity of horses in Wisconsin, due to the fact that nearly all the meetings have late dates, and in many cases the dates are conflicting. So it behooves the secretaries to use every effort to induce horsemen to visit their meetings, hence the hustling. In the fall there is no part of America that offers more in the way of fine climate and beautiful surroundings than does Wisconsin, and there is no section in which horsemen receive a more hearty welcome.

Among the pleasant incidents connected with my visit to Janesville was meeting Henry D. McKinney, who, since the death of Joseph Cairn Simpson, is the oldest of former contributors to the turf press. I was told that Mr. McKinney was quite feeble, but was pleased to note that he is still able to be around and was in daily attendance upon the races. He isn't as spry as he used to be, but let us hope that at eighty years and I will be as hale as he is. His mind is clear and active, and he keeps in touch with breeding and racing affairs remarkably well, con-

BUTTERS IS STRONG MAN ON EDGERTON BALL TEAM

Janesville Slab Artist Does Brilliant Work for Tobacco City Team in Game Yesterday.

The Edgerton city baseball team won renown in their game with Newville yesterday afternoon at the annual picnic of the Albion Camp, M. W. A., with the assistance of Thomas Butters, the local slab artist. The score was 19 to 5 in favor of the Tobacco City boys. Three pitchers—Brown, Crandall and Miller—were used up by the Newville team, while Butters at all times held the grangers with his superb pitching.

HANSON TEAM MEETS ASSOCIATION NINE

Furniture Makers Hope to Add Another Victory to Their Record And to Humble Leaders.

Interest in the games scheduled for tomorrow in the commercial league centers around the Y. M. C. A. Hanson company contest at Athletic park. Luck combined with superb playing has been with the association men for the entire season and they seem entrenched at the head of the percentage column. The Hanson boys are planning to deliver them a jolt tomorrow, however, and the contest will be a close one.

Other games scheduled are: Parker Pen vs. Lewis Knitting company and Janesville Machine company vs. Recorder at the Park Association diamond, and Northwestern vs. Gazette at Athletic park.

WANTS ANOTHER SIX YEARS AT CAPITAL

Senator Francis E. Warren, of Wyoming, has been in public office so long that he has begun to regard it as an imposition for anyone to run against him. However, he is likely to have some opposition when he asks the Wyoming legislature to return him to the senate this winter. His present term expires March next. Senator Warren, who happens to be a staunch Taft man, has represented his state in the senate since 1890. Before that he was governor of Wyoming for several years.

CLAP TRAP ARGUMENTS.

Dr. Woodrow Wilson, democratic presidential candidate, is supposed to be voicing the arguments of the party he represents. He is the official mouthpiece of democracy and the representative in the national field of political favor. Wisconsin is largely a rural state. Its great wealth lies in its farm and if the present system of excessive taxation of the industries by the reform element continues, there will be no need of crying back to the soil, for that will be all that will be left to the citizens. However, an exchange makes the following comment on Presidential Nominations Wilson's first address to the public after being officially notified of his nomination that should be read and digested by Wisconsin farmers and business men before deciding to vote for the democratic ticket this fall.

"It was not unreasonable to anticipate that a clear-headed and highly educated student of public affairs like Governor Wilson would be able to present a good case in his opening speech without finding it necessary to descend to the clapping of the professional politician when addressing rural audiences. The day has passed when the farmer is a be-whiskered gawk who swallows every sophistry the political orator offers. He is now a product of the schools, he rides in automobiles, he keeps abreast of current events, he knows the market quotations every day.

"To the farmer of the present age such a declaration as the following is the rankest twaddle:

"You people own a big house, but you have let the other fellow live in it. It is time to turn him out. What I suggest is that you proceed to break into your own house and live in it. The tenants who have been there a long time have been making you pay them the rent, instead of paying rent to you. You have paid the money that enabled them to live in your own house and dominate your own premises. Turn them out.

"For fear the full meaning of this hyperbole might be missed the speaker enlarged upon it, presenting several custom-made denunciations of trusts. He declared that while American farmers were feeding the world congress was feeding the trusts.

"That there has been great development in our manufacturing business since the beginning of the century is, of course, evident; and that a great part of this advancement can be traced to the tariff may also be admitted. But what about the farmer? Has protection done nothing for him? Suppose you consider the price of farm products today and ten years ago. The advance will prove startling in every important article. During the same years the selling prices of manufactured articles have upon the whole been reduced. In this respect the products of the great trusts are particularly noticeable. Steel products, farm machinery, textiles,

Charles W. Morse, released from the penitentiary because he was dying, is about to put a fleet of ships on the Atlantic. One can't help wondering what he would do if he only had his health.

One of the most touching features of the campaign is the enthusiasm and devotion Uncle Jud Harmon is manifesting toward the Wilson-Marshall ticket.

A New York woman says she cares more for her horses than her husband. Being a New York woman who maintains a stable, why should she take the trouble to say it?

Secretary Wilson announces that beef prices will come down. But unless the Chicago packers happen to agree with him, it is the secretary that will come down.

A "shortage" is the excuse for the predicted rise in the price of hard coal. The real shortage will be in the wind of those who try to make the public believe it.

Senator Bailey declares that national calamity is impending. Yes, we all know the senator is about to retire, but we will bear up under it the best we can.

American millionaires are not taxed enough, says Andrew Carnegie. But he is over in London where neither the tax assessors nor the millionaires can get at him.

There are nearly thirty murders a day in the United States. Not counting, of course, what is done to the "latest popular songs" on the vaudeville stage.

A Chicago woman says that big men make better husbands than small men. It's harder for them to get into the house late at night without being heard.

A New York man bathed, shaved, polished his shoes, brushed his clothes and hanged himself. Evidently all in the same category with him.

"Sulphur and brimstone are on the free list." Still the campaign orators this fall will demand that at least their expenses shall be paid.

"The only straight thing about the Panama Canal seems to be the canal itself." What about the tip that has been given England?

At any rate the price of straw hats is not unduly high this summer. That is one comfort anyway.

If these are dog days, the dog must be a water spaniel or an otter hound.

Candidates for the Boobyhatch. The young man who believes her when she says he is the only man she ever kissed.

The elderly party who dyes his mustache and hair and thinks he is fooling anybody.

The woman who thinks that she can make a gown over and make any other woman believe it is new.

The gink who writes love letters to a married woman.

The person who thinks he can get ahead in his profession by croaking.

HELEN KELLER IS NOW A SONGSTER NOW

HELEN KELLER. Helen Keller, the wonderful blind, deaf and dumb girl, who educated herself, learned to write on the typewriter and do other things that were considered almost marvelous, finally learned to talk. Now she is singing and surprising Boston audiences by singing in three languages, English, French and German. Noted scientists who had assembled were astounded.

PREXIE TO BE OUR GREECE MINISTER

Jacob Gould Schurman. Jacob Gould Schurman, for many years president of Cornell university, has accepted an appointment as minister to Greece to succeed George Higgins Moses. Dr. Schurman expects to devote a great deal of time to studies on the ground of the doings of ancient Grecian civilization.

Love as Poet's Inspiration. Moore lived up to his theory that love's young dream is the sweetest thing in life. He never let one love get old before he supplanted it with a new. Carey had his Sally of "Sally in Our Alley" fame. Surrey loved Gertrude from the time she was a child in short dresses. Corneille, the astute lawyer, fell in love and became the brilliant dramatic poet. Thus it seems that love, whether successful or otherwise, for a time inspires its votaries.

The Thinker Knows. Only the man whose hands never touch the realities of life despairs of human progress or doubts the providence of God.—Albert J. Beveridge.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

According to Uncle Abner. A lot of fellows write illegibly simply because they can't spell.

When a fellow knows it all there is no use trying to tell him anything except something that ain't so and he'll generally swallow that, lock, stock and barrel.

Apparently a lot of good harvest hands were spoiled this season to make poor ball players.

A fellow that is very badly in love never wears a celluloid collar or eats onions.

So long as every fellow thinks his religion is the best, what's the use in starting anything in the way of an argument?

Who ever heard of a bride that wasn't beautiful and accomplished?

I never see a president of a railroad or a trust magnate who had a reputation as a fine dancer.

Hank Tumms says he is getting so skeptical lately that when anybody offers to give him anything he always wonders what is the matter with it.

There is only one thing as uncertain in this world as a woman and that is some other woman.

Rev. Hanks snuffed whiskey on Hot Peter's breath the other day and chided him for drinking. Hot says the dominie goes altogether too much on circumstantial evidence.

Elmer Jones says "Vanity, vanity, all is vanity." The milliner ain't looked at Elmer since T. Esberl Peary got one of them new style soft hats with a little bow in the back.

William Hilliker has reported to Constable Ezra Lund that somebody has picked the lock on the burglar proof cheese case in his store and the constable says the carnival of crime in this community has got to stop.

These Must Make Ananias Jealous. "Your luncheon, Mrs. Jones was the most charming I ever attended."

"My wife lets me smoke anywhere I want to."

"How well you are looking, my dear. I was telling my husband just the other day that you seem to be growing younger every day. Few women do that."

"What a love of a gown, Myrtilla. It looks as though it came from Paris and fits you like a glove."

"Never in my life, Hank, did a bill collector call on me. None of that for mine."

OUTING IS ENJOYED BY CHURCH SOCIETY

Members of Helping Hand Society of U. B. Church Entertained At Home of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Schults.

Forty members of the Helping Hand society of the United Brethren church were entertained at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Schults on Milton avenue yesterday afternoon. The trip was made in automobiles and hayracks.

A business session of the society was held at which the following officers were elected: Mrs. Omar Whaley, president; Mrs. Edna Fitzgerald, vice-president; Mrs. Perry, secretary; and Mrs. Belle Haight, treasurer. A sumptuous repast was served to the society by Mrs. Schults before the members returned in the evening.

Board Meeting.
The Sunday school board of the United States church consisting of the officers and teachers, met at the church last evening and nominated officers for the ensuing year. The election will be held next Sunday at the Sunday school hour.

STREET CAR HITS DR. NUZUM'S AUTO

Dr. J. F. Pember Sustains Bad Shaking Up When Machine Collide on North Washington Street.

Dr. T. W. Nuzum's new Pathfinder touring car was badly damaged and Dr. J. F. Pember sustained painful scratches and bruises when a street car collided with Dr. Nuzum's machine on North Washington street at nine-thirty o'clock this morning. Dr. Nuzum was driving the car and was in the act of backing up to turn around after making a call at the Mercy hospital. When directly on the tracks of the street railway company a north bound car struck the automobile broadside, throwing Dr. Pember out and badly damaging the body of the touring car.

UNLOADED HUGE BEAM FOR FIRE STATION THURSDAY

Steel Beam Weighing About Four and a Half Tons Removed From Car by Firemen.

Chief Klein and a number of the firemen were busy yesterday afternoon unloading and conveying to the fire station the huge steel beam which will be used in the remodeling work now going on there. The beam, which weighs about four tons and a half and is the heaviest of its kind in the city, was removed from the car and taken to the station by the use of rollers and block and tackle. It will be put up in the station in place of the posts formerly held up by the horse stall partition. The beam is made of unfabricated steel.

MISS BERTHA PILLER OF BROOKLYN WAS MARRIED

Sister of Floyd M. Piller of This City Wedded Yesterday to Marion Adamson of Belleville.

Miss Elizabeth Kuhnert and Floyd M. Piller of this city were in Brooklyn yesterday to attend the wedding of Mr. Piller's sister, Miss Bertha Piller of Brooklyn, to Marion Adamson of Belleville, Wisconsin. The wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, and the bridal couple were attended by Raymond Piller of Chicago, formerly of this city, and Miss Florence Piller of Brooklyn, brother and sister of the bride. Mrs. Adamson has visited in this city and has a large number of friends here.

The funeral will be held from the home Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Tremendous attraction at the West Side Auditorium, Saturday, August 24th: Mr. Franks will appear here by special request wrestling with an unarmed, dehorned bull weighing 1150 pounds, exhibiting great strength and performing many other marvelous feats of strength. VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Mr. Editor:

May I be so bold as to venture a few remarks in the Gazette concerning the "obnoxious" income tax law? I will try to be brief for fear that your space will be too valuable to permit a lengthy article.

But I have been watching the editorials and other articles and have tried to determine who the law is so "obnoxious" to and whom it is going to affect in a harmful manner.

I assume that you will agree that the taxes for the running of the state government should be paid in an equitable manner by those who own property or desire gain from business enterprises, in fact from all who reap the benefits financially from doing business in the state.

And the question has come to me: "Who are the residents of the state upon whom the income tax will fall in an unjust manner?"

Is it the laboring man who earns from $10 to $20 per week, who has a little home, worth say $1000 and who has a family of say three children to support. Surely not for the law provides an exemption of $1200 for himself and wife and $200 for each child under eighteen years, so that with a salary of even more than $20 per week his home assets at $300, he would still have no taxes for his exemption of $1200 for himself and wife and $200 for three children would be more than his taxes even if the rate might be 10 per cent on his property. So much for the laboring man in town.

How will it affect the farmer who rents a farm on shares or for cash rent? He has heretofore been assessed for all of his personal property, including machinery, tools, etc. Under the income tax law when he pays his income tax next winter he may present his receipt for personal property tax as an offset against his income taxes; he may also deduct the cost of running his farm aside from house expenses; he will have the same exemption for himself, wife and children and where is the farmer of this class that will have any tax to pay.

The merchant who is in the same category as the farmer, for his tax on his stock of goods will more than offset his income tax, so where is he injured by an income tax? How about the manufacturer? The manufacturer in Wisconsin is assessed on the property he owns on the first day of May each year, whether his property earns him a dollar or not during the year. Under the income tax law he will not have to pay unless he has an income over and above expenses. No income, no tax. Is that not fair? Should such a proposition drive any manufacturer out of the state.

I read sometime ago in a small paper that the Ringling circus was to be removed from the state on account of the income tax. The fact is I have known the head of the Ringling circus for over 30 years and before an income tax law was ever thought of for Wisconsin, or at least before it was agitated by legislators, Mr. Ringling told me personally, while on a visit to his headquarters in Baraboo, in 1902, that he contemplated moving to a warmer part of the United States with a part of his animals on account of the cold climate, and in order to have better facilities for his large and fast growing circus. We presume other concerns that "are going to leave the state" have other reasons than the income tax if they would be honest enough to admit it.

But who is treated unjustly by the income tax law? Is the man who has money and credits upon which, under the old law he would have been assessed according to law, by paying for instance on a note or bond of $1000 drawing 5 per cent interest, he would be paying in a city, where the tax rate is say 17 mills on the dollar, a tax of $17.50. That would be unjust and unreasonable and it has not been enforced. He would have an income of about $50 on the $1000 and would pay 35 per cent of his income in taxes, while under the income tax law, the highest possible rate would be 6 per cent on the income or a tax of $3.00 instead of $17.50. But if a man has a taxable income of only $2000 $3000 or $4000 the rate would be less than 2 per cent and that would be only $1.00. Six per cent upon an income is low compared to 1 per cent upon property.

Who is hurt? Is it the large farmer who from the income from his farm is able every few years to buy another farm, purchase automobiles, and other luxuries, and who as is well known has not paid more than his just share of taxes? We do not think that the average land owner feels that a too heavy burden is placed upon him by the income tax law if he has investigated it. Who then? We would like to have someone enlighten us.

There are no doubt some defects in the law and which should and no doubt will be corrected by the next legislature. The law is not perfect, but it is the best that could be passed by the last legislature, and we would advise the voters to be careful about selecting candidates for the legislature, who, simply because some news paper has denounced the law as "obnoxious" and demanded its repeal, who have, without even reading the law or investigated its workings announced themselves "opposed to the law and in favor of its repeal."

Remember that 70 per cent of the tax so raised goes back to the towns and 20 per cent to the counties. That every country in western Europe except France, has an income tax and no country has ever repealed an income tax law.

In conclusion, the income tax law of Wisconsin, is an attempt to get rid of a very bad system of taxation, and while it has its defects, it is a step in the right direction and should be fairly tried before being condemned. We should go forward instead of backward and the next step should be to repeal the taxes on personal property entirely and get the revenue from an income tax.

I am a poor man and have no taxes to pay, but I have watched lawmaking for many years and I am honest in my belief that the income tax law is one of the best measures ever adopted for all classes and when properly amended will prove a blessing to all.

PLAIN CITIZEN.

PUNGENT THOUGHTS.

Janesville, Aug. 23, 1912.
Dear Editor: It seems to me that a few words in defense of the young auto drivers in this city would be not only timely, but a matter of justice as well.

The writer of the letter in Wednesday's Gazette, spoke very well from his point of view, but the other side should be considered. Age has nothing to do with the avoidance of accidents of the class under consideration. As witness the one yesterday morning. The driver of the St. Atkinson car which hit the boy bicyclist near the Grand hotel, was a long way past 17. I saw both car and driver. Neither was the age of the young girl motorist responsible for the recent fatal accident to a child. A case in point is one that occurred in nearly the same spot on Milwaukee street a few years ago when a young unheeding boy darted directly in front of a moving street car and was ground to death under the wheels. The motorist was "over 21," but what could he do more than he did? And if it is too young for a driver, what about 12 or 13 as an age for a nurse girl in charge of a lively five-year-old?

The very next night after the little Robin boy met his death, the car in which he was riding barely escaped hitting a little child on a busy crossing. The car was rambling nearly half a block ahead of his parents, stopping and going ahead in the erratic manner of all three-year-olds, and it was only by the almost superhuman skill and alertness of our driver, that the child was unharmed. Certainly it wasn't owing to any care on the part of the parents who were both "over 21." And when it comes to a "show down" I had rather trust my life to the hands of a 17-year-old football player, with eyes, muscles and brain trained to alertness and rapidity of thought and motion, than to those of the middle aged business man absorbed in the one idea of getting to the trusting place with another man's wife. Regulate the speed all you like, but let the age class alone.

MINERVA MARMON.

ONE MORE COMPLAINT.

Janesville, Wis., Aug. 23, 1912.
Editor of Gazette:
Does the grumbling citizen of Janesville, stop to consider that there is just as much, if not more danger to the public through the recklessness of some of the half intoxicated owners of cars, than there is from Bobby or the seventeen-year-old school girl? If there be a law prohibiting youthful drivers, should there not also be one against the half-intoxicated owners?

Another citizen of Janesville who is also the owner of a car and also interested in the safety of the public.

WOODMEN OF ALBION CAMP ENJOY PICNIC

Many Attend Annual Outing at Lake House Point, Lake Koshkonong, Thursday—Edgerton News.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Edgerton, Aug. 23.—Yesterday at Lake House point, on Lake Koshkonong, the Albion camp of M. W. A. held their eleventh annual picnic. The day opened somewhat unfavorably, a shower of rain setting in which continued for one hour or more.

The day's event opened with an address by Hon. B. F. Keeler on the Woodman law question at eleven o'clock, which was followed by a picnic dinner. In the afternoon, with more favorable weather, the first of the program was a game of baseball between the Edgerton and Newville teams which resulted in favor of the Edgerton team by a score of 19 to 5. Following came the boys' and girls' foot races, and next a blue rock shoot took place.

The Albion cornet band furnished music throughout the day and it is estimated that the attendance in the afternoon reached about two thousand.

The day's event closed with a dance in Academy hall in this city, which, although not largely attended, proved a most pleasant social event.

Band Concert.
Following is the program to be rendered at Saturday night's open air band concert:

1. Patriotic March.
2. Southern Melodies.
3. Turkey in the Straw.
4. Silver Threads Among the Gold.
5. Sweet Remembrance Waltzes.
6. War Songs of Boys in Blue.
7. Auld Lang Syne with Variations.
8. Star Spangled Banner.

Edgerton News Notes.
M. J. Schmidt went to Chicago this morning to spend the day on business.

Mrs. C. B. Boutelle has left for Rewey on a visit to her daughter, who resides at that place.

Mrs. Hannah Conn, after spending the past two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Conn, left today for her home in Juda.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Henderson and Mrs. Allan Skinner returned today from Viroqua where they visited with relatives and friends for a week or more.

Miss Ethel Walrath of Mitchell, S. D., is here on a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Grant Walrath.

Misses Anna and Metta Lightcap of Dubuque, Iowa, are in the city, the guests of Miss Nellie Bentley.

C. A. Fritzsche went to Fort Atkinson yesterday afternoon and returned this morning.

Andrew Jensen has left for Red Wing, Minn., to attend a church council.

The members of the W. R. C. today held their annual picnic and outing at the Lake House resort at Lake Koshkonong.

Fads and Fashion

New York, August 22.—The wave of elegance and elaboration which began to sweep through the realm of women's fashion last year, has finally reached the last stronghold of simplicity, the tailored costume. The plain mannish coat and skirt suit guileless of garnishment in the way of braid, fancy buttons, silk facings, pipings or frogs is no longer fashionable except for the most businesslike occasions. When it comes to the formal tailored costume for afternoon calls, matinee or restaurant tea costumes, there is no end to the elaboration the tailor can pile on—always holding in mind, however, the simplicity and straightness of line which control smart tailored fashion.

The return of broadcloth is an interesting note—and a straw which shows which way the wind is blowing. One cannot but be relieved that the clumsy materials, taken up last winter with the vogue for reversible effects, will not be worn, and that we are to get back to the charming, easily managed broadcloths which are always becoming and which come in such enchanting shades. Monotone effects in costume are promised for the winter and two-tone effects also, with the two shades carefully selected with a view to perfect harmony. In contrast to those elegant monotonies and two-toned effects, which are always distinguished and refined when carried out in good materials, are the contrasts over which Paris is fast just now.

It is exceedingly modish to have a coat and skirt that do not match, and the more striking the contrast, the smarter the suit. Velvet coats are shown with broadcloth skirts and vice versa; satin is used in contrast with seersucker and velvet, and one even sees faille and effects silks combined. The material of one's suit really matters very little—provided the cut and the coloring are modish.

A new model just imported from Paris, has a coat of black and white uncut velvet over a skirt of black broadcloth; the velvet coat being piped at all the seams with white broadcloth. The buttonhole motifs are made of white broadcloth also, and these motifs and the lines of piping at the seams of the coat are finished at the end with acorns embroidered with black and white silk. The coat has a cutaway line in front, and the side seams are lapped under buttons and buttonholes over the back, the large armhole being accentuated by piping. A belt of white and gray leather runs across the back from the laps under the arms, fitting the coat in the least bit as is now the fashion.

Semi-fitting are coming in as fast as the tide, and it will not be long before the very straight, cassock-like back has disappeared entirely. Belts are on everything. It is the unusual coat this year that is belted, and though the belt may pass only half way around the coat, or even be but a strap held down by buttons at front and back, it always gives a suggestion of the fitted effect.

The tiny machine pleating, or accordion pleating, as it is sometimes called in this country, is again at the height of fashion's favor. Machine-pleated skirts are being shown in Paris with hip-length coats of the same or contrasting material.

Fashion is still imitating Directoire modes, but now the modes are masculine rather than feminine. The cut-away coat opening over a frilled waistcoat, the eccentric Robespierre collar, the many buttons, the coat tails, the exaggerated coat revers—they are all here, and in most cases the skirts beneath the dandified coat are narrow enough to suggest the knee breeches of the Directoire era.

Browns and grays are to be the colors in smart tailored wear, say those who profess to know. Many handsome tailored suits in shades of brown are beginning to appear, and the orders for gray suits are enormous. All shades of gray are favored from delicate mother-of-pearl to taupe gray with its mauve cast. The smoke and elephant grays are liked best for worsted suits, but one sees the paler shades in crepe de Chine and charmeuse gowns for dressy wear. Gray is a difficult color to match satisfactorily, and the woman who selects to dress in grays this winter should be sure that all her materials can be matched in trimmings and accessories before having anything made up. Gray satin boots with smoked pearl buttons are being ordered to accompany handsome gray suits for carriage and limousine wear, but with the gray broadcloth or mixed worsted street suit the patent leather boot with a buttoned cloth or calf top will be in best taste.

The Robespierre collar is particularly well lined and gives a new touch to the finishing of the neck, which is effective and becoming. In elaborate dresses there are draped effects in the form of berthes of lace. This idea is frequently noted in the designing of evening and afternoon dresses.

The full-length sleeve is used on practically everything but elaborate afternoon and evening dresses. Sleeves are close fitting, with a leaning toward the mousquetaire effect, the foot of the sleeves generally being finished with buttons which reach midway to the elbow. Frills of lace or net are very often noted in the foot of the sleeves.

The dropped-shoulder line is conspicuous. This idea permits of many variations in sleeve designing. The regulation sleeve with few gathers at the shoulder is also seen, and sometimes the sleeve is put in the arm's-eye without gathers.

In materials charmeuse will be a favorite in the fall for dresses for various occasions. Crepe de Chine will also be popular, as well as velvets and chiffons. Chiffon will be used in combination with charmeuse and laces for evening wear. For street wear charmeuse, serge, whipcord, velvet and corduroy will be much used.

Laces are used profusely in the trimming of dresses of all kinds. In the making of evening dresses lace is used just as much as it possibly can be and in the trimming of afternoon and even street dresses it is used in a variety of attractive ways.

Charmeuse and Crepe de Chine dresses are seen with a profusion of self trimming in the form of shirtings in band form, and buttons are used in a variety of attractive ways for trimmings.

Dotted swiss is much used for summer effects. Roses made from this material are used for millinery and other trimming purposes. Dotted Swiss is also used for knife-pleated ruffles, and scarfs are also edged with a double ruffling and parasols are trimmed with the same. There is a great deal of dotted Swiss used for entire gowns, or combined with lawn. It is also used for hats, jabots, break-fast caps, petticoat or any other garment that is suitable for warm weather.

The artistic Carrickmacross lace is used for vests, fancy collars and cuffs and bows of crepe chiffon.

Moire silk is to have a great vogue the coming season in coats, tailored suits, trimmings and millinery.

FLORENCE FAIRBANKS.

Trinity in Early Days.
The west end of Trinity churchyard used to be a high bluff. It was a favorite resort for the inhabitants in that part of the town. From the top there was an uninterrupted view of the Hudson. It was in early days as much of a promenade as is Riverside at the present time.—New York Press

TODAY'S EVANSVILLE NEWS

EVANSVILLE IS HOST TO ECONOMICS CLUB

Afternoon Club Entertained Wednesday Ninety Members of County Organization Evansville News.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Evansville, Aug. 23.—The Afternoon Club entertained Wednesday ninety members of the Summer side of Households Economics. This club has over two hundred and fifty members drawn from Avalon, Milton, Coalsville, Oxfordville, Footville, and Janesville, the largest membership coming from the latter place.

The ladies of the First Baptist church, served the dinner after which the visitors repaired to the lawn of Mrs. T. C. Richardson, where a splendid program was given. Mrs. Marchionni Bell of Monroe gave a talk on Civics, which was a strong feature of the program. Although special committees were appointed for the entertainment by the guests, each member of the club felt a responsibility which went a long way in making the afternoon a success.

Personal Mention.
Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Sherman and family motored from Janesville to visit Mr. DeCaray and wife.

Miss Wilcox of Janesville was an Evansville visitor Thursday.

Mrs. Laura Jones is quite ill. Dr. Colony is in attendance.

The invitations are out for the wedding of Miss Elsie Finn of Evansville to M. Will Preston of Juda.

Will Lee of Magnolia has rented Mrs. Margaret Winter's house on South Madison street. Mrs. Winter is preparing to move to Ohio.

Mrs. Wilcox is quite ill at her home on Railroad street. Mrs. Nancy Hyne is caring for her.

Carpenters are at work remodeling the Dry Goods Department of the Economy.

Miss Ruth Bingham returned Wednesday from Lake Kegonsa where she has been staying with her sister, Mrs. Kennedy and her mother, Mrs. Bingham.

Miss Edna Lewis, who is at Madison Sanitarium, is gaining.

Miss Mable Hyne went yesterday to visit her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Frances near Albany.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bender goes to Michigan Sunday to visit her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. George Blunt.

TAFT SUPPORTER SEEKS RE-ELECTION

William Alden Smith, of Grand Rapids, whose term as U. S. senator expires next March, is asking the people of Michigan to send him back to Washington for six years more. He is opposed by George P. Hummer, Democrat, of Grand Rapids, and Theodore Joslin, Progressive, of Adrian. All three candidates are putting up a hot fight.

Summer Foods Off-n

Cause Dyspep ia

Their Effect on the Digestive Organs Responsible for Many of the Season's Ills.

Summer should be the period of perfect health, but impure water and milk, unripe fruit, and the tendency to indulge in acid foods and iced drinks, produces a contrary condition in many people.

The effect of the average summer diet is to constipate even normally regular bowels, and this results in disarranging the entire digestive system. When the bowels are choked with the stomach's refuse, indigestion is almost sure to follow, and the waste matter that should pass out through the bowels, not finding passage, ferments in the stomach and the poisons are forced into the blood, causing a "stomach" and "poison" illness.

To keep the bowels free, there is no more effective remedy than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a pleasant-tasting bowel stimulant and laxative tonic that is very gentle in its action, bringing relief in an easy, natural manner, and without discomfort. A spoonful of Syrup Pepsin will quickly check summer diarrhoea by cleansing the bowels and removing the foreign matter that irritates and inflames the tissue. It is sold in drug stores for fifty cents a bottle, a large family size, considerably more than twice the quantity, costs a dollar. If you have never used Syrup Pepsin and would like a free trial bottle, postpaid, write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 406 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

Making a Holy Man or Salvation from the Subjective Side

By Rev. James M. Gray, D. D.,
Dean of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT.—For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit.—Romans 8:5.

There are several things which God does for the Christian believer in an objective sense, that is, in the sense that they proceed from himself without being necessarily known to or experienced in the believer's life. In other words, he reconciles him, he saves him, he justifies him, he blesses him with all spiritual blessings in Christ Jesus. These things all speak of the believer's state or position before God, and constitute what might be called his legal standing.

In this sermon, however, we are to think about what God graciously does to transmute this legal standing of the believer before him into the actual experience and conduct of the believer himself. This is what we mean by "salvation from the subjective side."

If the other things touch on Christ's work "for" us, these relate to Christ's work "in" us, on the supposition that we have received him as our Savior, and confessed him as our Lord.

In other words, he, through the Holy Spirit, does several things which go to make the true believer a holy man, and which are enumerated in this eighth chapter of Paul's letter to the Romans; for although our text is limited to but one verse, we intend to speak of more than one.

In the first place, the Holy Spirit sets the believer free from the law of sin and death, verses 2 to 4.

Prior to his regeneration through faith in Christ, the believer was under the power of a tendency or law in the direction of sin, the outcome of which was death, eternal death; but the incoming of the Holy Spirit to him means that a new tendency or law has been set up within him whose direction is just the opposite to this.

In the second place, the Holy Spirit gives him the spiritual "mind" or disposition to obey and follow out this tendency in the direction of holiness and eternal life—verses 5-10.

In the third place, he not only gives him the spiritual mind, but goes farther and gives the spiritual power to exercise that mind, verses 11-13, so that the Christian has no excuse for committing sin.

A Life of Victory.
The New Testament does not teach a doctrine of sinless perfection, or the eradication of evil from our hearts, as long as we remain in the flesh, but it does teach that there is such a thing as living a life of victory over every known sin every day. Christians have no justification for apologizing for quick tempers and irritable speeches and envy and jealousy—not to speak of grosser sins of the flesh—on the ground that such things are part of their temperament and can't be helped. It is true that they can't help them so far as their old nature is concerned, but the very purpose of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit is to enable them to live a supernatural life of power over them if they yield their wills to him.

In the fourth place, the Holy Spirit gives the believer spiritual encouragement to exercise this power, for he bears witness within him to his Sonship to God and heirship as well through Jesus Christ—verses 14-17. What stronger motive could there be to stir a man to put away sin and live a holy life comparable to the apprehension of the fact that he is indeed a child of God and a joint heir with Jesus Christ? People of the world are inclined to smile at these things and consider them ethereal and visionary, because they cannot understand them, lacking the spiritual discernment, but these are, after all, the real things, the substance of life, while the phenomena that occupy so much of man's attention now are only the shadow of the true.

Change in President Arthur's Life.
I remember the great change that came about in the character and in the outward life of President Chester A. Arthur. As a New York politician and collector of the port, he had been one of the "boys," the higher and finer class of "boys," and yet one of them. But when a strange providence placed him in the presidential office after the murder of President Garfield, what a change came over him! What a steady, sedate, wise, successful, honorable and pure chief magistrate he made! All speak well of his memory. The dignity, the exaltation, the privileges which had come to him contributed to make him over. It is much the same with the Christian who knows who he is and what he has in Christ.

Finally, the Holy Spirit gives the believer spiritual access unto God in prayer—verses 26-28. This is the crowning act of grace and power.

You know what a man is when you know what he loves.

SOUTH CAROLINA IS DIVIDED ON BLEASE

Administration of Former Governor is Sole Issue in Hot Campaign for His Re-election.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Columbia, S. C., Aug. 23.—Democrats of South Carolina in a primary election next Tuesday will nominate a state ticket, one United States senator and seven representatives in Congress. Nominations are equivalent to election.

All of the present representatives are candidates for re-nomination and several of them will be named without opposition. Senator Benjamin R. Tillman is opposed by N. B. Dial of Laurens and W. Jasper Talbert of Parksville. Owing to the condition of his health Senator Tillman has taken no active part in the campaign. Nevertheless, his friends believe that he is certain to defeat his two opponents in the primaries.

The bitter fight for the governorship between Governor Cole L. Blease and Judge Ira B. Jones is monopolizing public attention to the exclusion of all other contests to be settled by the primaries. There is but one issue. Shall the administration of Governor Blease be sustained and continued or be condemned and ended. On this issue the entire state is divided into hostile camps, while the bitter charges hurled at Governor Blease by his political enemies have attracted the attention of the entire country.

Governor Blease is regarded as a result of the old dispensary system which was established in South Carolina by Tillman, and which has caused innumerable scandals in the past few years. As a member of the legislature, he was in close association with the commission which ran the dispensary system and it is charged that he shared the large rebates which wholesale liquor houses were forced, it is alleged, to pay on all purchases of liquors for the dispensary.

The dispensary system became so notorious that the state decided to abolish the commission. In winding up its affairs, however, the state entered suit to recover from wholesale liquor houses in various large sums of money alleged to have been paid in rebates. In all these suits the name of Blease, who was then state senator, was mentioned. Several criminal prosecutions were brought against officials, but no one was convicted.

Blease ran for governor two years ago and won, although opposed by almost every newspaper in the state and the charges against him were placarded everywhere. After his inauguration he started out to punish his enemies. At the outset of his administration he began issuing pardons on a scale never before known in the South. More than 400 pardons have been signed by him since he became governor.

Governor Blease had warrants sworn out against Attorney T. D. Felder of Atlanta, who represented South Carolina in winding up the affairs of the dispensary commission, but the governor of Georgia refused to honor the requisition papers. To protect himself, Felder hired Detective William J. Burns to prove the charges against Blease and his men.

Detective Burns and his men offered a legislative committee testimony to show that Governor Blease had received money for the pardons granted, and had accepted money from the blind tigers for protection and had signed or vetoed railroad legislation which came before him for a consideration. Attorney Samuel J. Nicholls was named as the agent of Blease in these transactions. Burns had used dictographs on Nicholls and his records were offered as evidence. Nicholls admitted that he had dealings with Burns' men, but said that he was drunk and that the "records of the dictograph were the savings of an intoxicated man."

Many thought that the revelations would put Blease out of the running for a second term, but he has turned them to account by saying that they are lies told by the aristocrats to discredit a man whom the common people elected governor. His friends contend that the statements about the governor's personal character are the slanders of his political enemies. They say he has headed a vigorous administration according to his own way of thinking, and that in the degree that it had been vigorous in that degree has it displeased and angered his opponents. They point to the fact that the governor has strict ideas of state economy; that he succeeded in having the department of state geologist and the office of chief game warden abolished in view of the fact that he considered them unnecessary and a useless expense; that he vetoed many of the items of the appropriation bill presented him by the legislature and that his vetoes were generally in the interest of saving the state money. Governor Blease himself vigorously defends his pardon record, insisting that it has been directed by the dictates of justice and mercy.

Hate Denoted Liberty.
In Rome slaves, when they received their liberty at their masters' hands, wore cone-shaped felt hats, which came to be the symbol of liberty. After the death of Nero the citizens of Rome wore pointed hats to show that they were relieved from the oppression of a tyrant. Later on, when the Netherlands threw off the Spanish yoke, they adopted a hat in the coat of arms of that nation.

Parisians Find Rent a Burden.
Rents in Paris have increased heavily within the last decade. The number of vacant dwellings is constantly decreasing and many citizens fear that within five or six years they will either have to pay unbearably high rents or move outside the city.

The Road to Fame.
"Virtue is its own reward," quoted the good young man. "Yes," replied the black sheep of the family, "the prodigal son got more fame than his virtuous brother who stayed at home and behaved himself."

BRODHEAD IS SCENE OF BIG TOURNAMENT

Large Crowd Gathers for Festivities Attending Competition of Fire Companies.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Brodhead, Aug. 23.—Notwithstanding the inclement weather the biggest crowd that has gathered in Brodhead for years, assembled here yesterday. Bands of music played all day. The races by the competing fire companies and other sports on the streets made plenty of entertainment all day, besides the ball game and balloon ascension. The game of ball was between the Chicago Union Giants and a picked local team and resulted in a victory for the colored gentlemen. While inflating the balloon for the first ascension too much kerosene was used causing it to catch fire and burn up. However, another was sent for, arriving at four o'clock, which at once made ready and at 5:20 Miss Dorothy DeVonda made a fine ascension. The day was a fine success throughout.

Items Personal.
Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Wood and children of Rockford are the guests of Brodhead friends for a few days.

L. Wilson of Beloit is spending a day or two at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wilson.

Miss Julia Luchisinger of Brooklyn is spending a few days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Luchisinger.

Mrs. Mildred Ungebreitson of White-water is visiting her mother, Mrs. Anna Mitchell.

Mrs. Wm. Ten Eyck and four children of Osceola are guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mayeux.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Baker of Chicago are making a visit at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Baker, near Avon.

SIDEWALK KETCHES.

THE COMPLEXION.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

THE complexion is that part of the human face which is taken off at night and hung in place immediately after breakfast.

The lowest order of complexion is worn by men, who allow it to collect whiskers, moles and other debris.

In setting out to organize a complexion which will be weather-proof and non-combustible, only the best quality of white enamel and a d strawberry extract should be used. These are inexpensive and can be applied with a mop, although a trowel makes a neater and more durable job.

The old-fashioned natural complexion which stayed in one place year after year and didn't have to be re-decorated with anything except soap and water, has become so common that everybody is trying to trade off for one of the drug store patterns.

A very neat warm-weather complexion can be made of aniline dyes and liquid glue, laid up in veneered strips and trimmed with talcum powder. After a man sees his wife in one of these complexions, plural marriages will have no attraction for him.

The complexion should be unhooked before retiring and dusted carefully, after which it should be re-touched and hung on the foot of the bed for emergency use. A well-bred woman would no sooner think of going out without her complexion and other impediments than she would of holding the hand of a total stranger.

In some localities there is an unreasonable prejudice against the evening dress complexion, which should never be allowed to clash with the colors in a decolette gown. Then there is the dust-proof automobile bleach, which can go over a four-inch bump without releasing its hold.

It is a good plan not to compete with patent complexion renovators until they have been tried out on somebody with a sallow skin and a hopeless future. It is better to go through life with an inherited complexion and a sour look than to become an experiment station for the untried and inexperienced cosmetic.

VANILLA BEAN.

The making of vanilla extract is not a complicated process but it does call for expert knowledge of material. Vanilla beans come in all grades, from the worthless to the best. The finest beans are grown and cured in Mexico. Their value is about double that of pure silver. Every conceivable device is used to adulterate and deceive the public into buying worthless vanilla. Never buy a bottle labeled compound or modified extract or one on which the name vanilla is misspelled. The standard strength of a drug store extract is ten per cent, but the laws of Wisconsin allow peddlars and canvassers to sell three per cent extract and label it Pure Vanilla.

The pure food guarantee has nothing to do with the quality. Pure Vanilla is pure vanilla whether made from worthless beans or beans worth double their weight in silver. The worth of the beans is in their fine flavor.

Mr. Fennig, our graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, makes our vanilla from the finest beans. It is double strength, absolutely pure, of the nicest flavor, aged for at least four years and sold at 15c the ounce, 2 ounces 25c. We ask you to buy a bottle today. Use one-half the amount you use of any other extract in your next frosting or cream, learn its rich flavor and strength. We know you will always be our customer. NOTHING NEW APPEARS ON LOCAL MARKET TODAY

There is nothing new on the local market today and the prices remain the same as yesterday. There were some very fine fresh blackberries on the fruit market this morning, but they are getting to very scarce and the next few days will see the last of them. The watermelons which came on the market sometime ago are still of a very good quality and they are very abundant. Peaches which have been so very good this season are still of an excellent quality, but they are not as plentiful. The prices of the local market for today are as follows:

Janesville, Wis., Aug. 23, 1912.

Vegetables: Fresh carrots, 5c bch; new potatoes, 30c peck; H. G. cabbage, 5c; lettuce, 5c a bunch; head lettuce, 10c; celery, 3 bunches 10c; parsley, 5c bunch; yellow string beans, 5; fresh tomatoes, 2c pound; hothouse cucumbers 5c each three for 10 cents; rhubarb, 5 cents bunch; green peas, 8c lb; beet, 5c lb; green onions, 2 bunches 5c; green peppers, 5c each H. G. turnips, 5c bunch; vegetable oysters, 5c bunch; green peas, 8c lb; beets, 5c bunch; cauliflower, 10c@12c; white onions, 5c lb; Spanish onions 6c lb; summer squash 5 cents; sweet corn, 10c doz; oranges, 25c, 30c, 35c, 40c, basket; Bartlett pears, 30c dozen; basket; Bartlett pears, 30c dozen; seedless grapes, 12c lb; green apples, 5c lb; eating apples, 5c lb; blue plums, 10c dozen, green plums, 15c dozen; sweet potatoes, 5c lb; Duchess apples one member asked.

"My usual position," she replied, "is on a chair with the child across my knees, face downward!"

"I have called to collect the rent," said the landlord briskly.

"Yes," said the lady of the house calmly. "Come in, please. Before I pay you there are one or two things."

"One moment, madame," interrupted the landlord suavely. "Permit me to save you the trouble. I know the dining room isn't fit for a dog to sit in; the wall paper in the drawing room is a downright shock to people of taste; the state of the kitchen is disgusting, and the front door a blot on the neighborhood. I also feel sure that you do not intend to remain unless I put fresh paper in the bedroom and have the coal cellar thoroughly whitewashed. But I may say that I only mean to redo the drawing room and paint the front gate this season."

The lady of the house bowed her head gently.

"That's really what we expected of you," she said quickly. "But I thought I would have to work off the same old bluff to get even that."

My dear sir, as it is Lent—and a Friday to boot—would your mind if I asked you to confine your efforts exclusively to fish stories?"

An applicant for the post of misquestioned by those in authority.

"And what is your position with regard to the whipping of children?"

5c lb. Home grown yellow corn 10c red peppers, 5c each; H. G. spinach, 8c lb; dill 12c bundle.

Fresh Fruit: Bananas, 10c@20c dozen; lemons, 30c doz.

Butter and Eggs: Creamery, 30c; dairy, 25c@27c; eggs, 22c.

CAMPBELL'S FAMOUS FLY CHASER

Every family and every business place should apply on their screen doors some of Campbell's Fly Chaser. Every time the door is opened the little pests are seen to enter in droves, but when you apply Campbell's Fly Chaser to the wood work or the screens they give the premises a wide berth.

This fluid applied to screen doors brightens them up and makes them appear to be newly varnished. The solution will not injure the paint but rather protects it from the elements.

Campbell's Fly Chaser is a disinfectant and deodorizer.

It is second to none as a fly chaser and is great to alleviate the sufferings of horses and cattle from the fly pest.

Campbell's Fly Chaser contains no kerosene and is not inflammable.

Home of Dwarf Races.

In Luzon, the Philippines, there dwells a race of dwarfs known as the Actas, whose average height is four feet eight or nine inches. They live in the mountains of the interior, thus bearing out the theory of one authority upon little peoples that most, if not all, of the dwarf races survive only in the most inaccessible parts of the continents or islands to which they belong.

Scented Hatpins Now.

The scented hatpin or hairpin is the newest device, for perfume that is state is very unpleasant, and its effect may be overcome by simply moving these hatpins in the hair, the result being a fresh evolution of the sweet odor that is gratifying to those fond of it.

Two-Handed Writers.

"Don't go after wealth with both hands," advises Rudyard Kipling. Isn't this a rather severe restriction on the ambidextrous authors who are making fortunes whunging out modern novels on the typewriter?

Slightly Different.

The request was made in a public library for the rather remarkable little "Wait a Minute." After some detective work on the part of the librarian it was found the book wanted was "Tarry Thou Till I Come."

Men's Defects Sized Up.

The ten chief defects of men, as decided by the votes of the women readers of Femina, one of the most popular women's weeklies in France, are egotism, easily first with 2,387 votes; then come jealousy, 1,968; infidelity, 1,783; intemperance, 1,417; cowardice (or rather base mean-spiritedness), 1,350; immorality, 1,070; despotism, 1,057; anger, 1,051; conceit, 1,000, and idleness, 935.

Light rains over the Lake region and east to the coast. Scattered light rains have also occurred in the southern states. Fair weather prevails this morning over the states west of the Mississippi.

There is an area of low barometer central this morning, over Saskatchewan, which has caused showers over western Canada in the last twenty-four hours.

HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

Making Life Less Monotonous

THE woman who complains of the monotony of life should take a leaf from the note-book of the woman of fifty-three who graduated this summer from a college in Nebraska.

If that woman were asked if she found life monotonous, she would probably laugh at the question. And she would tell you beamingly and enthusiastically that she found every minute of life full of zest and satisfaction. In all probability, she hasn't time enough to enjoy all the good things she finds in life.

Not every woman of fifty-three can go to college and graduate. But she can take up some study or subject of reading and find out thereby how full of interest life is and what a big proposition it is.

How many, as they look up at the stars at night, realize what a universe of wonder and mystery is over them? Probably very few. Most of us take the stars for granted and give little thought to them. But if we did nothing but read a few of the popular books of astronomy, life would have larger meaning for us, and an evening on the piazza or the sea beach, greater enjoyment.

If we would make a point of learning something about the wild flowers that we pass every day in a brief walk or see from the trolley or train, we would find our walk or ride more enjoyable.

There are scores of other things about us on all sides just as interesting. And there is more to the study of them than is seen at first glance. For everything that nature makes is a marvel of workmanship, no matter how tiny it may be. And when one begins to understand the wonderful mechanism, the perfection and beauty, even in what one has always thought a weed, a feeling of interest, almost of affection springs up for it, that gives a zest and delight to the study of it that no one can appreciate until he has experienced it.

And with all these wonders about us, it is strange that we go on our way unseeing, unthinking, and complaining that life is dull and monotonous; while they have been put here for the very purpose of preventing life from being flat and monotonous.

And what this woman has accomplished, and what many another woman, even older—last year a woman of eighty graduated from college—has accomplished shows what women can do if they will.

Age is no handicap. In fact, such interests keep one young. The thing to do is to resolve upon some such course. And now in the idle days when one has time to think, is the opportunity to look ahead and plan out some study or reading for the winter months that are coming.

The woman who wants to keep young, the woman who wants to be interesting, the woman who wants to be popular, the woman who says she is bashful and has nothing to talk about—all these and many others who want greater joy in life will find this the road to their desires. The only way to prove it, is to travel it. Unfortunately, many women seem disinclined to set out on the journey. They prefer to buy something in a bottle to keep them young, or something at the beauty specialists to make them popular.

But this is the far more interesting and the surer method. For it keeps the spirit young and enthusiastic. It fills one with the joy of life. And this makes one's life more interesting and sought after. It gives the magnetism that attracts. Better yet, it gives one's self greater joy in living, and that is the most important of all.

One Family of 20,000,000.

The rapidly with which rats multiply is the main reason why man appears to make so little headway in their destruction. It is calculated that a single pair of rats and their progeny, breeding without interruption and suffering no losses, would in three years increase to more than 20,000,000. —Baker's Weekly.

Pertinent Suggestions on the care of the little ones during the hot months.

BABY'S CLOTHING.

Clothing is supposed to be worn for protection, for moral reasons, and—let me add—for cosmetic reasons. Yes, you have it right, cosmetic reasons.

Without this protection most of us would be affected with anthrophobia.

Anthropologists tell us that among the uncivilized peoples of the Torrid Zone, where clothing is not worn, immorality is practically unknown, but with the advent of civilization and clothing, immorality takes its place with other pre-requisites of civilization.

I have often sat down and tried to think of some valid reason why infants should be punished by first having to wear flannel next to the skin for one year; second, having to wear for three months, clothing at least a year too long for them. I always have to give it up. There may be excuses, but absolutely no valid reason. I have reasoned it out like this: food, air and exercise in the (open) are absolutely essential to the proper growth and development of the child.

The mother should see that food and air are provided in the proper amounts, but the child, if unhampered by clothing and surroundings, will attend to the exercise. Head, arms, and legs should be free so that he can move them freely.

Babies and children do not need, so far as necessity is concerned, so much clothing as is generally supposed. They are more active than adults, their blood circulates faster than adults, they manufacture more heat; the surface of their bodies will react to heat and cold quicker than will an adult.

How often have we pitied the poor little coddler all fussed up in long starched clothes, who was making a desperate but vain attempt to exercise his arms and legs, and at the same time look cheerful. And again we have pitied the youngsters when they were (yanked) brought in from their play two or three times a day to be washed and have their clothes changed.

Frequently during the hot summer months the babies clothing can be limited to a diaper and a pleasant smile. A soft simple slip with or without light underclothing, depending upon the weather, makes the ideal summer attire for the baby.

If mothers knew how much healthier and how much better dispositions their little ones would have if dressed sensibly and in keeping with the seasons, I am sure they would give the matter more thought and attention.

Recently Assistant Chief of Police Shuttler, of Chicago, called attention to the large number of accidental deaths among children, from their clothing catching on fire. He said that a great majority of the accidents were due to fluff, billowy and starched ruffles. Of course the warning will go unheeded and mothers will continue to dress their children, especially their daughters in useless fluff, billowy, starched and flaring ruffles, because the little dears look so cute and sweet, you know.

Mothers, use common sense and judgment in dressing your children, regardless of fads, fashions, follies and fancies.

EVERY occupation lifts itself with the enlivening life of her who practices it. The occupation that will not do that, no woman really has a right to occupy herself about.

WHAT TO DO WITH LEFTOVER BITS OF CHEESE.

Cheese is such a valuable food and is so particularly good in combination with starchy foods, and those lacking fat and flavor, that it should be found more often upon our tables.

When buying cheese it is best not to get it in too large quantities, as it dries and molds. To keep it from molding, wrap it in a cloth wrung out of vinegar. Grate all the small pieces before they get too dry and keep them in a jar with a tight cover.

In cooking cheese it is well to remember that overheating it makes it indigestible. When possible, add the cheese to a hot dish only long enough to melt it. A tablespoonful of cheese will flavor a dish, and not even a scrap should be thrown away.

Butter crackers and sprinkle with grated cheese and a dash of cayenne, place in a hot oven and serve when the cheese is melted.

Cheese Shell Filled With Cabbage.—Boil until tender a small head of young cabbage. Drain, chop and season well. There should be about two cupsful. Put it in an empty edam or pineapple cheese shell, in alternate layers, with one cup of white sauce. Heat in the oven until the sauce bubbles; this will give the cabbage a delicate cheese flavor. Boiled macaroni or rice may be substituted for the cheese if preferred.

Cheese Macarons.—Spread Macarons together with any tart jelly and press together with a layer of snappy cheese between.

Cream Cheese Crackers.—Take unsweetened crackers. If not crisp set them in the oven for a few moments. Spread with plum or currant jelly and drop a teaspoonful of cream cheese in the center of each cracker.

Cheese Balls.—Add a dash of tabasco sauce to cream cheese, a pinch of salt, paprika to make it pink, and cream to make a paste. Form into balls and roll in finely chopped black walnuts. Serve on lettuce with French dressing.

Pack cream cheese, well seasoned, into red or green peppers; then serve cut in slices. Very pretty.

A POINT AGAINST MEAT EATING.

It has been found by experiment that the excreta of flesh eaters injected into rabbits is more than twice as poisonous as that from non-flesh eaters—and such experiments are, by the way, as justifiable as dental or surgical operations, if done with equal care and beneficent intent, since upon humane vivisection most of our knowledge of physiology is based. It follows that, other things being equal, the auto-toxic condition of the meat-eater is twice as serious as that of the non-flesh eater. This difference is well known to those who have had opportunity to compare the condition of those who eat much flesh with those who eat none, and no theoretical argument can disprove it.

Easy to Get Rid of Corns THIS Way

"GETS-IT," the New Corn Cure. Guaranteed.

"Corns Gone! GETS-IT Got 'Em!" "GETS-IT" is the new-plant corn cure that will surely remove the very first time you use it. It is so simple, painless, quick and sure in its action. It shreds up the corn, wart, callous or bunion, separates them from the true flesh, the corn comes off, and there you are, with feet that feel positively glorious. Corn-free other more as they used to be in your "barefoot days." The most remarkable feature is that "GETS-IT" does not harm or irritate the healthy flesh as other preparations do. It is as safe as water. No more plasters, bandages or salves. "GETS-IT" is sold at drug stores at 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago. every minute. And the hot-polloi would be miserable without it. In fact, they won't be without it. They'll make a clatter with their voices if nothing else is available.

It is said that as man becomes more civilized his voice grows lower. Savages invariably have high pitched voices. Also, the civilized man harmonizes sounds, making them agreeable to a cultivated and sensitive ear, while the savage thumps and twangs and screeches when he renders what is music according to his idea.

From this one might judge that our modern cities are fostering us in savagery so far as sound is concerned, for one doesn't reside in a city long before he elevates his voice to the highest point in order that the shriek of his remarks may be heard above the turmoil, and what's agony to sensitive ears is sweet music to the city.

I am reminded, in this connection, of a church committee commissioned to get an organ for a large new church. A number of applicants played "on trial." Some were quite excellent, but none of these was selected. The choice fell upon a man of no particular ability, but he made the church shake by using the heavy stops and keeping his feet on the base pedals.

The committee was properly impressed. "That's our man," said the gray-whiskered chairman, after the performance. "He certainly plays well. Why, I couldn't hear myself think."

"The wedding came on. I bought and made most of the tresson, furnished a good part of the new two-room home, and even went to the wedding and danced a horn-pipe or something with the bridegroom—to the utter horror of my friends and relatives."

"Jennie's husband got out of work soon after and I took her back to work for me—doing most of the work myself because of an impending interesting event for Jennie."

"I made all the clothes for that first baby myself and fed the family that winter. I got my friends interested, too, and we saw that the little family was supplied with coal and the rent paid."

"Why, I deprived myself of necessities to see them through. For three winters it was the same story—husband out of work, another baby arriving, and piteous appeals for help."

"Most of the time."

elements of life in high temperatures. In his olla podrida, a mixture of peppers, fowl, peas and bacon, the Mexicans and the Spaniards find all the elements needed to stimulate his system enervated by long continued heat. The Arab chooses dates, grains, milk and dried flesh; still further South we find melons and succulent vegetables added. Liebig, the renowned German chemist, whose researches into the food problem were far-reaching, declared that the water of a country has much to do with that country's food; in Ireland, the water is alkaline from quantities of lime, which the potato and cabbage lacks; in England and Scotland the waters are soft and the oats and wheat, which are the principal cereals and form a great part of the diet, are rich in phosphates.

Whether too much meat and not enough fruit and vegetables are eaten by the average American family is a question that only individual families can decide, but meat is highly stimulating and supplies more exciting than nourishing, pabulum to the nervous system. Meat eaters live at high tension and have, or should have, an active organism like a predatory animal; always on the alert, walking rapidly, consuming great quantities of oxygen, which is necessary for the disposal of the assimilated material. "Well and good!" But in practice we find that the meat eater does not live up to the requirements of his food; the shop or office does not furnish the amount of oxygen needed, so that the more meat our people eat the more do nervous diseases increase.

Another consideration that recommends a varied diet is that it reacts to reduce the high price of meat.

Hucksters' Voices. The plan now is to educate hawkers and ragmen to use their voices so that they will not disturb or offend the cultured. After the process is completed, it is feared the demand for criers who can properly announce the invasion of a neighborhood by the professionals would be hard to supply.—Woman's National Daily.

Never. Even the most miserable people in the world are never treated as roughly as is the piano in a house that is rented furnished.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ON MAKING COMPLAINTS.

THE other day in a restaurant I saw a young girl haughtily summon the waitress and tell her to take back an order of ice cream in which, according to the customer, there was a taste of salt.

The waitress inquired if the customer would like something in its place, and being told with some asperity that she had no time to try again, meekly bore away the ice cream and changed the charge on the customer's slip.

After the waitress had disappeared, I heard the girl say to her companion: "It wasn't very salty, but it didn't taste the way I thought it would, and there was a little salt in one corner, so I thought that would be a good way to get rid of it."

I wonder who was blamed for the salt in that ice cream? Somebody was, of course. Complaints like that aren't usually left in mid-air. The restaurant lost ten cents by that girl's decree, and some one was probably held responsible for that loss.

When a customer of a shop or a patron of some public utility launches a complaint into the air and receives the assurance of some obsequious clerk that the matter shall be attended to, she feels a sense of relief at having vented her righteous indignation. But I don't believe she visualizes to herself the fact that some real concrete person is going to receive a sharp rebuke or perhaps even more than that as a result of her complaint.

The girl who used a speck of salt as a pretext for getting rid of some cream that she did not fancy is an exaggerated example of the complainer. There are not many like her—I hope. But there are a great many people who are always ready to complain of the goods or service they receive, on any legitimate ground. "Clothed in a little brief authority," I always think when I see any such person enjoying the opportunity to be domineering and supercilious to some clerk whose business it is to receive complaints.

Some employers make allowances for such cranks and receive their complaints with a big grain of salt, but the more common tendency is to take the side of the customer against the employee. A certain successful clothing house deliberately tells its clerks to remember that "the customer is always right." Pleasant for the customer? Yes. But think of the attitude toward employees, which is the inevitable complement. And although few employees go quite so far as to make a stated rule, in the majority of cases the customer undoubtedly gets the benefit of the doubt in any matter of complaint.

So go easy on such complaints. Think twice before you make them. There are times when you owe it to yourself, to common justice and to future sufferers to protest. But more often the righteous indignation which you fancy you feel is simply ruffled pride, passing annoyance or a desire to exercise your power as the master or mistress of the public servant.

Give yourself a chance to cool down first, and then if you think you ought to make a complaint, do so.

But you probably won't.

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young smoothing them down with your fingers several times a day.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Recently I went with some friends to a picnic at another town. I met a fellow from our town. He dined with me and asked me to take a walk with him. We went about two blocks. He always wanted to hold my hand and I wouldn't let him. He didn't like it very much and he said: "I was the first girl he ever walked with that he didn't take hold of her hand. I don't let anybody take my hand."

Then he asked me to sit down. I did about two minutes; then got up and asked him to take me back. He said to sit down yet a few minutes. I refused and told him if he wasn't going to take me back I would go by myself, which I did. I thought he would follow but he arrived at the picnic 15 minutes later. I didn't pay any attention to him. If he apologizes what should I do?

Ask yourself these questions before you try to win a girl's love, because no honorable man will wish to do that without intending to marry the girl. You should not call the girl by any endearing name unless you are engaged to her. Then you may call her all the pretty things you can think of.

Ask her if you may call on her. Take her out to entertainments, picnics, etc., occasionally. Be courteous, good-natured and kind hearted, and she will certainly like you.

PICNIC IS PLANNED BY AFTON WOODMEN

Annual Outing Will Be Held in Village Next Wednesday—Severe Damage by Monday's Storm.

Afton, Aug. 22.—People of Afton and vicinity will have opportunities for attending picnics next week. The local camp of the M. W. A. are planning a picnic for Aug. 23, to be held in the village. The committee on arrangements are working hard to make this a success and local Woodmen hope that all members and friends of the camp will turn out to make this one a success. A dance will be held in the evening at Brinkman's hall.

Damage by Storm. The reports of the storm which passed north of Afton, Monday night, show a large amount of damage done to growing crops, especially tobacco. On the Henry Blunk farm, Charles Good, tenant, the corn is badly injured, while more than half the tobacco on the place is ruined. Other places west of the river on which the crops are damaged are Arthur Woodstock, Mr. Johnston and Gus Nohr. East of the river at the Baines farm, now owned by Mr. Zeman, the storm was almost a cyclone. Immense trees were uprooted, the large cheese house was moved from its foundation, and the milk house was completely demolished. Other places which were swept by the storm were Ed. Coate's place, Chas. Kilmer and Mr. Anderson farms.

Tobacco buyers were numerous throughout the section after the storm. One man, whose crop was unhurt, was offered 16 cents for his crop.

Other News. Miss Mattie Pettit of Chicago is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Lizzie Waite. Mr. and Mrs. A. Anderson of Center spent Thursday at Ehler Brinkman's. Mrs. Arthur Woodstock and Mrs. C. F. Waite called on Town Line friends one day last week. Mrs. Prick Beckus and children of Rockford are spending the week with Mrs. Beckus' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Hammel. Miss Bertha Tank, who was married at Rockford, Aug. 14, to H. R. Whitmeyer, is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tank of this place. Friends extend to them hearty congratulations. They will reside on North High street, Janesville. Mr. Demein, brother-in-law of F. Kethelholm, who has just returned from a visit in Germany, spent a few days with Mr. Kethelholm last week. His daughter, Emma, and grandson, Rolley Demein, of Milwaukee, met him here and returned with him to his home in Milwaukee. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nott of Redfield, South Dakota, and Miss Faye Antisdell of Janesville are spending the week with friends and relatives in and around the village. Mrs. Fred Kethelholm is spending the week with friends in Lima.

WERE REPRESENTED AT ATWOOD REUNION

Large Delegation of Town of Beloit People Attended Gathering—Other News.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Town Line, Beloit and Rock, Aug. 22.—A matter of interest to many will be an account of the Atwood reunion which was held Tuesday, Aug. 20, at the farm home of Fred Pickard, Sub. Station No. 2, near Rockford.

Mrs. W. I. Eldridge, whose early life was spent in this locality, but who now resides in Beloit, is one of the ten living children of Patten and Anne Atwood. At the reunion of the descendants of Patten and Anne Atwood, eight of the ten living children with their children and grandchildren inclusive to the number of ninety-nine (99) were present. The oldest of the eight children present is 85 years old, the youngest 62.

Ellen Lamont Richardson, of the fourth generation, whose age is six weeks was the youngest one present.

An Atwood association was formed with the following officers: president, Seth Atwood, Rockford; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Fred Eldridge, town of Beloit.

Mrs. Arvilla Atwood of Stillman Valley, read a history of the Atwood family relating back to 1741.

Those present were from Old Mexico, Iowa, Oklahoma, Wisconsin and Illinois.

A big dinner at noon was followed by ice cream and cake later in the day. Those present from this neighborhood were: Mr. and Mrs. L. J. McCrea and family and F. R. Eldridge and family, River Road.

The reunion for 1913 will be held in August at the home of L. J. McCrea, Riverbend farm, near Town Line bridge.

Recovers From Shock. Mr. E. Englebreton, who received a shock from lightning Sunday afternoon, while visiting at the home of Krut Stoltz, is recovering from the shock, and was able to be removed to his home about three miles distant Monday afternoon.

The house was untouched by lightning but it was found that a telephone pole in the yard was struck and it is thought that the electricity followed the wire into the house near where he was sitting.

Other News. Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Plumb entertained the former's brother, C. E. Plumb, wife, son and daughter of Chicago, also Dr. and Mrs. M. Lyle

Plumb of Evansville, Indiana, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard G. Plumb, daughter of Shullsburg, last week at their home in the town of Beloit.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Gates and children of Hebron, who were here to attend the Atwood reunion, spent Tuesday night at the home of F. R. Eldridge.

Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley of Beloit, were over Sunday guests at the home of Henry Bahling.

Mrs. Wehler, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Jones, returned to her home at Rock Prairie last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Behling entertained Mrs. Behling's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Schooff, of Rockton, and other friends last Sunday.

The storm of Sunday afternoon, when as usual the Interurban cars were out of commission, drove many picnickers to seek refuge in convenient farm houses. The home of Arthur Jackson, near Town Line bridge sheltered twenty until the cars began running again at ten o'clock at night. Another party of six spent the night at the home of John Linde, after being unable to find any farmer who wished to take his team out in the pouring rain to carry them to Beloit.

MONTICELLO

Monticello, Aug. 22.—John C. Elmer, who has been spending a number of weeks at Shelbygon is here for a short visit with relatives. Mr. Elmer will return to Franklin next month, where he will finish his course of study at the Mission House college.

Mrs. Wm. Schuler and daughter, Miss Ina, left yesterday morning for Letitia, Okla., where they go for an extended visit with the former's father, Herman Heimstreet.

William H. Prisk, the veteran thrasher, had the index finger of his left hand badly injured while operating his thrashing machine. One of the knives in the automatic feeder attached to the machine caught him as he was clearing away some chaff and besides lacerating the member quite badly, the bone of the finger was split between the knuckle and second joint.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Steideman, of Chicago, came Saturday for an extended visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Casper Blum.

Thomas Boyles and family now occupy the recently remodeled house of Leonard Blum on West street.

Ray Zimmerman left last week for Showano, where he is assisting the J. N. Roherty force in putting in a sewer system.

Miss Emma Baer, of York, Neb., is being entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Aultman.

Attorney W. A. Loyeland has removed his law office from the rooms over the meat market to the old bank building, making the change yesterday.

Jacob R. Freitag is temporarily in charge of the Freitag & Blumer dray, during the absence of Jacob J. Blumer.

A Weissmiller left the first of the week for Oshkosh, where he went to see his brother, Fred Weissmiller.

Lester Falter, who has been spending several weeks with relatives here returned yesterday morning to his home at Janesville.

The Monticello schools will open for the fall term on Monday, Sept. 9.

Postmaster C. D. Kennedy went to Madison yesterday morning to be present at the annual convention of Wisconsin postmasters' which convenes there.

Wm. Schuler has resumed his position in the grocery department of the Peoples' Supply Co., after a vacation of two weeks.

James Kennedy, who has been seriously ill for a number of weeks, being afflicted with a carbuncle on the back of his neck is on the mend.

Elder and Mrs. A. E. Bloom, of Annonade, Minn., were guests of Monticello friends for a few days this week.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS ENJOY SOCIAL SESSION THURSDAY

Mrs. George Jones was hostess to Crystal Camp Social Club—Luncheon Follows.

Mrs. George Jones was hostess to the members of the Social club of Crystal Camp 132, R. N. of A., at her home on Myrtle street yesterday afternoon. Following a very interesting program the new game of Bull Moose was played with prizes awarded to Mesdames Elser, Perschbacher, Mason and Gilbertson. A delicious luncheon was served after which a launch ride up the river was enjoyed. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Francis, 806 Milwaukee street, Thursday, Sept. 5.

About Beans.

The bean that we eat in some form nearly every day, that almost everybody likes, is comparatively new as an edible. Our common, everyday bean is a native of South America and was introduced into Europe, whence it came to this country, during the sixteenth century, and now is represented by more than 150 cultivated varieties. The big, broad bean is so remote that it is doubtful. It is probably a native of southwestern Asia and northeastern Europe.

CAINVILLE CENTER

Cainville Center, Aug. 23.—Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Townsend of Janesville, welcomed a baby boy to their home Tuesday, Aug. 20.

The Misses Ruth Atcheson, Ruth Chase and Eva and Ella Townsend are spending a few days of this week at the home of Ray Andrew in Dayton.

Mrs. A. F. Townsend spent Tuesday and Wednesday in Janesville.

Threshing is progressing quite rapidly again in this place.

Geo. Townsend is putting in the foundation for his silo. Louis Howe is doing the concrete work.

The Loyal Workers will hold a rally at the A. C. church Friday Aug. 30th, to which all are invited.

Miss Nina Worthing will teach the coming school year near Oerfville.

John Troon has bought Lew Baringer's place and will take possession in two weeks.

Mrs. Geo. Townsend attended the summer club of Household Economics at Evansville Thursday.

Miles Clark is threshing in Center. Mr. and Mrs. Penner Beals came home Wednesday from Iowa, where they have been the past six months.

CENTER

Center, Aug. 23.—Threshing is progressing slowly, owing to so much rain. Those who have threshed report a good yield, especially oats. The recent warm weather seems to be helping the corn and tobacco crops wonderfully.

The Misses Florence, Hazel and Vera Poynter returned from Richland Center, Tuesday, having spent two weeks with relatives there.

Miss Irene Sands has been engaged to teach the school in District No. 2. Miss Maud Howarth will return to District No. 1. Miss Mary Fisher will teach the Brown school, Miss Cora Fisher goes to Clark county and Miss Nellie Roherty will hold forth at Hanover, and the Misses Mary and Alice Roherty will resume their work in the grades in Janesville.

Friends of I. U. Fisher are sorry to learn of his illness and hope for a speedy recovery.

Mrs. H. O. Barlow spent last Saturday with relatives in Beloit. The ball game at Footville, Tuesday afternoon, seemed to attract the young people from here.

BROOKLYN

Brooklyn, Aug. 23.—The twentieth Century club gave a shower at the home of Mrs. Elta Smith in honor of Miss Bertha Piller. Miss Piller was presented with a beautiful picture of Sir Galahad.

Lloyd Knox of Milwaukee, visited the first of the week at the A. J. Winter home.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Smith and little daughter, Marjorie of Woodstock, Ill., are visiting at the E. A. Smith home.

L. G. Graves left Monday for a three weeks' visit in Richmond, Newport and other points in Virginia.

Mrs. Mary Sellik who has been a guest at the Ezra Sherman home has returned to her home in Redwood Falls, Minnesota.

E. D. Upson was a Madison visitor Tuesday.

Miss Lola Graves entertained a number of her young lady friends at this place at a luncheon at her home in Madison, in honor of the Misses Myrtle Mayspaugh and Bertha Piller.

Mrs. Luella Patchin of Evansville, was a guest Tuesday at the Ezra Sherman home.

C. L. MILLER MADE DISTRICT MANAGER

Local Manager of Wisconsin Telephone Company Appointed To Take Charge of Janesville District.

C. L. Miller of this city, manager of the local exchange of the Wisconsin Telephone company has been made district manager of the company's lines in Rock, Green, Iowa, and Lafayette counties. A rearrangement of the telephone districts of the state was recently made by the company, and under this change, the old Janesville district was re-established and the Janesville exchange removed from the jurisdiction of the Madison district. Mr. Miller has been manager of the Janesville office for over a year past, coming here the first of April last year. The promotion comes as a recognition of his services for the company in his work here. For the time being, at least he will continue as manager of the Janesville exchange, in addition to attending to the duties of his position as district manager.

A Convenient Summer "Cooler"

Made quickly and at trifling cost— INSTANT POSTUM ICED

This new food-drink is regular Postum in concentrated form—nothing added—requires no boiling. With its snappy, Java-like flavour, it makes a delicious "cooler" and thirst quencher.

To Make Iced Postum—First dissolve in hot water; then pour into glass or pitcher containing ice. Add lemon and sugar as desired.

Hot Postum (made from same tin)—Stir a level teaspoonful of Instant Postum powder in a cup of hot water, add sugar and cream to taste, and it is ready instantly.

Instant Postum is sold by grocers in 100-cup tins at 50c. Smaller tins making about 50 cups at 30c.

Coffee averages about double that cost

If your grocer does not have Instant Postum, send us his name and a 2-cent stamp, to cover postage, for a 5-cup free sample.

Rich Men's Children

The climax of the day was the long evening round the fire. There was no reading then: It was the men's hour, and the smoke of their pipes and cigars lay thick in the air. Cut off from the world in this cranny of the mountains, with the hotel shaking to the buffets of the wind and the snow blanket pressing on the pane, their memories swept back to the wild days of their youth, to the epic times of frontiersmen and pioneers.

The judge told of his crossing the plains in forty-seven and the first Mormon settlement on the barren shores of Salt Lake. He had had encounters with the Indians, had heard the groans of a man from one who had known her, and listened to the sinister tale of the Donner party from a survivor. Bill Cannon had "come by the isthmus" in forty-eight, a half-starved, ragged lad who had run away from unconfessed drudgery on a New York farm. His reminiscences went back to the San Francisco that had started up around Portsmouth Square, to the days when the banks of the American River had swarmed with miners, and the gold lay yellow in the prospector's pan. He had worked there shoulder to shoulder with men who afterwards made the history of the state and men who died with their names unknown. He had been an eye witness of that blackest of Californian tragedies, the lynching of a Spanish girl at Downsville, had stood pallid and sick under a pine tree and watched her boldly face her murderers and meet her death.

The younger men, warmed to emulation, contributed their stories. Perley had reminiscences bequeathed to him by his father who had been an alcalde in that transition year, when California was neither state nor territory and stood in unadministered neglect, waiting for Congress to take some notice of her. Buford told stories of the vicissitudes of a strolling player's life. He had been in the Klondike during the first gold rush and told tales of mining in the North to match those of mining on the "mother lode." Willoughby, thawed out of his original shyness, added to the nights' entertainments stories of the Australian bush, grim legends of the days of the penal settlements at Botany Bay. Young Ryan was the only man of the group who contributed nothing to these Sierran Nights' Entertainments. He sat silent in his chair, apparently listening, and, under the shadow of the hand arched over his eyes, looking at the girl opposite.

But the lady had to end. Their captivity passed into its third week, and signs that release was at hand cheered them. They could go out. The streets of Antelope were beaten into foot-paths, and the prisoners, with the enthusiasm of children liberated from school, rushed into open-air diversions and athletic exercise. The first word from the outside world came by restored telegraphic communication. Consolatory messages poured in from San Francisco. Mrs. Ryan, the elder, sent telegrams as long as letters and showered them with the prodigality of an impassioned gratitude on the camp.

Perley had one that he could not speak of without growing husky. Willoughby had one that made him blush. Dominick had several. None, however, had come from his wife and he guessed that none had been sent her, his remark to Rose to "let her alone" having been taken as a wish to spare her anxiety. It was thought that the mail would be in now in a day or two. That would be the end of the fairy tale. They sat about the fire on these last evenings discussing their letters, what they expected, and whom they would be from. No one told any more stories; the thought of news from the "outside" was too absorbing.

It came in the early dusk of an afternoon near the end of the third week. Dominick, who was still unable to walk, was standing by the parlor window, when he saw Rose Cannon run past outside. She looked in at him as she ran by, her face full of a joyous excitement, and held up to his gaze a small white packet. A moment later the hall door banged, her foot sounded in the passage, and she entered the room with a rush of cold air and a triumphant cry of:

"The mail's come!"

He limped forward to meet her and take from her hand the letter she held toward him. For the first moment he looked at her, not at the letter, which dwindled to a thing of no importance when their eyes met over it. Her face was nipped by the keen outside air into a bright, beaming rosi-ness. She wore on her head a man's fur cap which was pulled down, and pressed wisps of fair hair against her forehead and cheeks. A loose fur-lined coat enveloped her to her feet, and after she had handed him his letter she pulled off the mittens she wore and began unfastening the clasps of the coat, with fingers that were purplish and cramped from the cold.

"There's only one for you," she said. "I waited till the postmaster looked at through them twice. Then I made him give it to me and ran back here with it. The entire population of Antelope's in the post-office and there's the greatest excitement."

Her coat was unfastened and she threw back its long fronts, her figure outlined against the gray fur lining. She snatched off her cap and tossed it to an adjacent chair and with a quick hand brushed away the hair it had pressed down on her forehead.

"I got seven," she said, turning to the fire, "and papa a whole bunch, and the judge, quantities, and Willoughby, three. But only one for you—poor, neglected man!"

Spreading her hands wide to the blaze she looked at him over her shoulder, laughing teasingly. He had the letter in his hands still unopened.

"Why," she cried, "what an extraordinary sight! You haven't opened it!"

"No," he answered, turning it over, "I haven't."

"I've always heard that curiosity was a feminine weakness but I never knew till now," she said. "Please go on and read it, because if you don't I'll feel that I'm preventing you and I'll have to go up stairs to my own room, which is as cold as a refrigerator. Don't make me polite and considerate against my will!"

Without answering her he tore open the letter and, moving to the light of the window, held the sheet up and began to read.

There was silence for some minutes. The fire sputtered and snapped, and once or twice the crisp paper rustled in Dominick's hands. Rose held her fingers out to the warmth, studying them with her head on one side as if she had never seen them before. Presently she slid noiselessly out of her seat, and dropped it, a heap of silky fur, on a chair beside her. The movement made it convenient to steal a glance at the young man. He was reading the letter, his body close against the window-pane, his face full of frowning, almost fierce concentration. She turned back to the fire and made small, surreptitious smoothings and jerks of arrangement at her collar, her belt, her skirt. Dominick turned the paper and there was something aggressive in the crackling of the thin, dry sheet.

"Perley got a letter from your mother," she said suddenly, "that he was reading in a corner of the post-office, and it nearly made him cry."

There was no answer. She waited for a space and then said, projecting the remark into the heart of the fire.

"Yours must be a most interesting letter."

She heard him move and looked quickly back at him, her face all gay challenge. It was met by a look so somber that her expression changed as if she had received a check to her safety as unexpected and effectual as a blow. She shrank a little as he came toward her, the letter in his hand.

"It is an interesting letter," he said, "it's from my wife."

Since those first days of his illness, his wife's name had been rarely mentioned. Rose thought it was because young Mrs. Ryan was a delicate subject best left alone; Dominick, because anything that reminded him of Berny was painful. But the truth was that, from the first, the wife had loomed before them as a figure of dread, a specter whose presence congealed the something exquisite and uplifting each felt in the other's heart. Now, love awakened, forcing itself upon their recognition, her name came up between them, chilling and grim as the image of death intruding suddenly into the joyous presence of the living.

The change that had come over the interview all in a moment was startling. Suddenly it seemed lifted from the plane of every-day converse to a level where the truth was an obligation and the language of polite subterfuge could not exist. But the woman, who hides and protects herself with these shields, made an effort to keep it in the old accustomed place.

"Is—Is—she well?" she stammered, framing the regulation words almost unconsciously.

"She's well," he answered, "she's very well. She wants me to come home."

He suddenly looked away from her and, turning to the chimney-piece, rested one hand upon it and gazed down at the logs. A charred end projected and he pushed it with his slippery foot, his down-bent face, the lips set and brows wrinkled, looking like the face of a sullen boy who has been unjustly punished. An icy, invading chill of depression made Rose's heart sink down into bottomless depths. She faltered in faint tones:

"Well, you'll be there soon now."

"I don't know," he answered without moving. "I don't know whether I shall."

"You don't know whether you'll be home soon? The roads are open; the postman has come in."

"I don't know whether I'll go home," he repeated.

The snapping of the fire sounded loud upon the silence that followed. The thrill of strong emotions rising toward expression held them in a breathless, immovable quietude.

"Don't you want to go home?" said the young girl. Her voice was low and she cleared her throat. In this interchange of commonplace sentences her heart had begun to beat so violently that it interfered with the ease of her speech.

Dominick leaned forward and dropped the crumpled letter into the fire.

"No, I don't want to. I hate to."

To this she did not reply at all, and after a moment he continued: "My home is unbearable to me. It isn't a home. It's a place where I eat and sleep, and I'd prefer doing that anywhere else, in any dirty boarding-house or fourth-rate hotel—I'd rather—"

He stopped abruptly and pushed the log farther in. The letter was caught up the chimney in a swirl of blackened scraps.

"But your wife?" said Rose.

This time her voice was hoarse but she did not know it. She had lost the consciousness of herself. It was a profound moment, the deepest she had so far known, and all the forces of her being were concentrated upon it. The young man answered with deliberation, still not moving.

"I don't want to see my wife. We are—we are un-congenial. There is nothing but unhappiness between us."

"Don't you love her?" said the girl.

"No, I never did," he answered.

For a moment neither dared speak. They did not look at each other or stir. They hardly seemed to breathe. A movement, a touch, would have rent the last thin crust of reserve that covered what were no longer unsuspected fires. Dominick knew it, but the girl did not. She was seized by what to her was a sudden, inexplicable fear, and the increased, suffocating beating of her heart made her feel dizzy. She suddenly wished to fly, to escape from the room, and him, and herself. She turned to go and was arrested by Cora's voice in the hall:

"Say, you folks, are you in there?"

Cora's visage followed her voice. She thrust it round the door-post, beamingly smiling under a recently-applied coat of powder.

"Do you want to tackle a game of euchre? Mr. Willoughby and I'll lay you out cold unless that British memory of his has gone back on him and he's forgot all I taught him last time."

They were too bewildered to make any response. Rose gathered up her coat and dropped it again, looking stupidly from it to the intruder. Cora turned back to the passage, calling:

"Here they are, Mr. Willoughby, all ready and waiting for us. Now we'll show them how to play euchre."

Before Willoughby appeared, responsive to this cheerful hail, Cora had pulled the chairs round the table and brought out the cards. A few moments later, they were seated and the game had begun. Cora and her partner were soon jubilant. Not only did they hold the cards, but their adversaries played so badly that the tale of many old scores was wiped off.

The next day the first movements of departure began. Early in the afternoon Buford and Judge Washburne started for Rocky Bar. In Perley's sleigh. The road had been broken by the mail-carrier, but was still so deeply drifted that the drive was reckoned a toilsome undertaking not without danger. Perley's two powerful horses were harnessed in tandem, and Perley himself, a mere pillar of wrappings, drove them, squatted on a soap box in front of the two passengers. There were cries of farewell from the porch andappings on the windows as the sleigh started, and sped away to the diminishing jingle of bells. A sadness fell on those who watched it. The little idyl of isolation was over. On the following day Bill Cannon

Bearing Periods of Fruit Trees.

Some one has estimated from statistics that fruit trees and bushes will bear for the following periods: Apples, 25 to 40 years; blackberry, 6 to 14 years; currant, 20 years; gooseberry, 8 to 12 years; pear, 30 to 75 years; plum, 20 to 25 years; raspberry, 4 to 14 years.

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them with the New Drug.

An eminent skin specialist recently discovered a new drug, of fine, double strength, which is so uniformly successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by Badger Drug Co. under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of ointment and remove them. Even the first night's use will show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely. It is absolutely harmless, and cannot injure the most tender skin.

Be sure to ask Badger Drug Co. for the double strength ointment; it is this that is sold on the money back guarantee.

Mahogany and Cedar in Ashanti.

It is estimated that the gold coast and Ashanti could supply 60,842 logs of mahogany and cedar a year if the internal communication were better. With mechanical haulage, such as traction engines and light tramways, the output could be increased to some 250,000 logs per annum without depleting the natural reserves.

Light Touch

THE extremely light action of the Monarch Typewriter endears it to all operators who use it. The typist who takes pride in her position finds great satisfaction in being able to turn out as much work, and as good work, per hour, toward the end of the working day as during the morning. Other conditions being the same, she can always do this on a Monarch. There is for users of this machine. The mechanical reason for the Monarch light touch is found in the action of the Monarch type bar, an exclusive and patented feature which gives this remarkably light touch. We would remind the business man that Monarch light touch means more work and better work, because less physical strength is expended by the operator. Therefore, cost per folio is reduced, making the Monarch a business economy.

"No Three O'Clock Fatigue"

SEND FOR MONARCH LITERATURE

Then try the Monarch, and be convinced that Monarch merit rests in the machine itself, not merely in what we tell you about it.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by

BY WALT MASON

Aunt Susan's joined the Sunshine Sisters, a cheerup club in town, and nothing, from cyclical twisters to earthquakes, makes her frown. The rain comes down; I sit rephing; "Oh, put your griefs to flight! Somewhere, she says, 'the sun is shining, and skies are blue and bright!' The sun is hot and I am crying; Aunt Susan leaves a smile. 'Somewhere,' she says, 'the snow is flying, and chilblains are in style!' I have the intermittent glanders; Aunt Susan hears me groan; 'somewhere,' she says, 'in Spain or Plunders, that all is unknown.' When wintry blizzards swat the highlands and zigzag through the CHEERING UP vales, 'somewhere,' she'll say, 'in tropic islands, there are no nipping gales!' I know my aunt's reflections merry should make my spirit glad; alas—man is so blamed contrary!—they only make me mad. When all my rags with sweat are wringing, and I am prone to swear, what boots it that the birds are singing on swaying boughs somewhere? I tell you what, O men and brothers, ye sons of liberty, when in the heat man gasps and smolders, he wants some sympathy; it lightens not the load that's crushing his spirit to despair, to hear that purple waves are washing on coral shores somewhere.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY. Small annoyances will hinder you and require much effort to overcome. The year will not be altogether unfortunate for later on a pleasant event will occur and you will meet with valued friends. These born today will develop fine characters, but either cannot or will not make a success of business. Their talent lies along literary or dramatic lines.

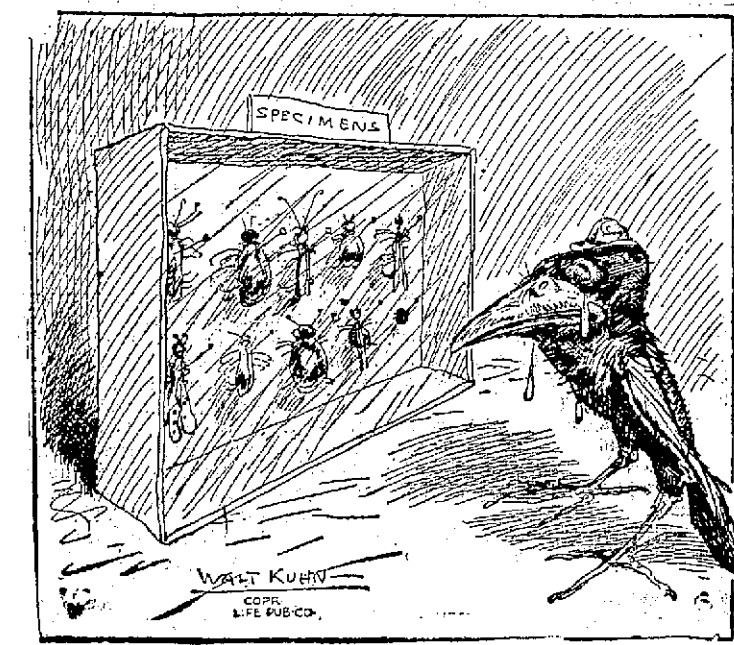

Long Have Been Right-Handed. According to authorities from $5 to $5 per cent. of the men in civilized lands are right-handed and have developed the low right shoulder. This, however, is no new phenomenon, for even the ancient Greek sculptors had noticed it and posed their subjects so as to make them appear more symmetrical.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville, Daily Gazette, August 23, 1872.—They Organize: At an early hour last evening it was apparent to those who had occasion to pass Lappin's corner that an unusual prospect was on foot. A half dozen Greeleyites were assembled in solemn convocations on the sidewalk with their heads so close together that a casual observer would have taken them for a bundle of Siamese twins. Now it is known to the citizens of Janesville that since the North Carolina decision came to hand there hasn't been any considerable gathering of Greeleyites in any outdoor locality and this sudden rallying of their forces was suspicious. It transpired, however, shortly afterwards, that a genuine Greeley meeting had been arranged for last evening for the purpose of effecting the organization of a Greeley and Brown club. An event of this nature naturally excited the curiosity of the people. Died of Morphine: Rev. Charles L. Balch, who preached a short time in Janesville, at the All Souls church in the fall of 1863, died in New York on Tuesday last from the effects of an overdose of morphine, taken to alleviate the neuralgia pains from which he was suffering. Brief Items: But one thing is needed to complete the improvements on South Main street, and that is to dry up the frog pond in front of the park. To purchase an accident ticket for five thousand dollars and give it to your girl when you go off on a journey on the cars is the thing now. It soothes her fears.

Part of the Profession. When a man makes politics his profession he begins to cultivate the habit of seeing only one side of a thing.—Chicago Record-Herald.

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO AID IN THE MATTER

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette. The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end. There are any number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses. Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications of the advertiser is omitted. All newspapers have this experience. But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns. The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

Flaw in Sound Advice. It has been said that we make a mistake in prescribing special hours for going to bed and getting up, and it would be a better way to follow the example of the dog and take an occasional nap when we have nothing better to do. Lovely. But how about "the eternal buttoning and unbuttoning" and the making of toilets, from which his dogship is immune, save in high-bred circles?

LANDS

FIND LAND BUYERS through advertising in the Daily Journal-World, Lawrence, Kansas. The farm lands about Lawrence are the finest in Kansas and therefore are high priced. Young farmers are looking for cheaper farms. The Daily Journal-World has a sworn circulation of 5,500, about half of which is in the country, and carries a full page of Want Ads. Rates: 1c per word 1 time, 2 1/2c per word for one week. The World Company, Lawrence, Kansas. S-17-6t.

ADVERTISERS—In placing your ad, three things must be considered—circulation, class of readers and price. The Reporter gives you ad greater measure of service for less money than any other newspaper in northern Iowa. The Reporter is read by 30,000 people every issue. Advertising rates one-half cent per word, each insertion. Cash with order. Reporter, Waterloo, Iowa. S-16-1f.

IF YOU ARE interested in real estate in the Northwest, you will do well to place an ad in the Want Columns of the Aberdeen Daily News, Aberdeen, S. D., the best advertising medium in this territory. Read every day by more than 25,000 people. Rates: 1 cent per word, first insertion, special rate by the week or month. Write for sample copy. S-15-1f.

ADVERTISERS—The great state of North Dakota, offers unlimited opportunities for business to classified advertisers. The recognized advertising medium is the Fargo Daily and Sunday Courier-News, the only seven day paper in the state and the paper which carries the largest amount of classified advertising. The Courier-News covers North Dakota like a blanket, reaching all parts of the state the day of publication; it is the paper to use in order to get results. Rates: One cent per word first insertion; one-half cent per word subsequent insertions; fifty cents per line per month. Address: The Courier-News, Fargo, N. D. S-20-1f.

SMALL SIZE

Some desire a piano of small size for upstairs or small apartments. The Waldorf piano is made in small size, as well as large size, the quality is there just the same in either size.
